GOVERNOR'S ACT ASKED

Mrs. Jones Angered After Visit
To Famed Tree

A storm of protest was gathering Monday against removal of the Boggs family monument from its mound in Logan Elm park and the order shunting against a boundary fence to make room for picnic tables.

The Pickaway county W. P. A. office was instructed several weeks ago to remove the mound and to cut down the tree to make it easier to read the inscription on the plaque. The order came from the Ohio Archeological and Historical Society, in whose charge the park has been since early in 1900 after the Boggs family, owner of the famous Logan Elm and its surrounding area, relinquished its claims to permit the land to be made into a state park.

Monument Removed
W. P. A. workmen have been busy regrading and doing much other work in the park since a project was approved. The mound on which the monument has stood, believed to have been built by the Indians, has been leveled and workmen are ready to place the Boggs monument in another location.

Telegrams were sent to Governor Martin L. Davey by several historical societies Monday asking that the work be stopped. "The park is being desecrated," one member of the Boggs family said.

Mrs. Howard Jones, president of the Ohio History Day association which annually conducts a celebration at the park early in October, was angered when she saw the mound had been removed and the monument was being removed. She promised to contact officials of the Ohio Archeological and Historical society at once.

W. P. A. officials are "standing by" awaiting further orders from the Historical society. If an order comes from Columbus it is probable the mound will be rebuilt and the monument replaced.

Thousands of tourists have visited Logan Elm Park this summer.

ASTOR - THORPE FIGHT RESUMES

Efforts to Submit Part of
Diary to Court Result
In Fight

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Hollywood emerged cautiously from its silence today in a strenuous, last minute effort to settle the Mary Astor-Dr. Franklyn Thorpe child custody fight.

Leading figures of the pictures, seeking to protect the reputations of high priced stars and the moral tone of the industry, had but a few hours to overcome the reluctance of the principles. Trial of the case in Superior court was scheduled to resume at 1 p. m. (EST) with Miss Astor the witness.

Miss Astor and her former husband, Dr. Thorpe, were reported unwilling to accept anything but complete victory no matter the revelations or the scandal continued name-calling in court might bring. Victory in either case would mean complete custody of their four year old daughter, Marilyn.

Diary in Question

The cross examination of Miss Astor will continue when court convenes, also the bitter fight over the admissibility of Miss Astor's Lavender Diary, in which her former husband charges, she rhapsodized extra-marital loves for the future edification of her daughter.

Hollywood heard from several authoritative sources that the office of Will Hays, supreme dictator of the movies, was pulling strings in a determined move to temper the battle, for the general good of the films.

Another peace effort was under the personal supervision of Irving Thalberg, who a few years ago was the "boy genius" of Hollywood.

HOWARD HUGHES STARTS SECRET AIRPLANE FLIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman and aviator, took off in a plane from the Union air terminal here early today for an unannounced destination.

Airport attendants reported that Hughes had 1250 gallons of gasoline in his ship. It was believed he had a co-pilot and a radio operator on board the standard Douglas transport.

Hughes recently secured a special radio band from the Federal Radio Commission, permitting him to encircle the globe and operate a radio.

Hughes took off with the greatest secrecy at 3:05 a. m. (PST). He followed his usual procedure of making quiet preparations over a period of weeks, refusing information on his plans, and then taking off without advance notice.

Helen Clevenger's mother is Mary Dresbach Clevenger, a native of Kingston. There are a number of cousins of the deceased girl living in Pickaway and Ross counties.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 10.—(UP)—A deputy sheriff took a blood-stained revolver and a mangled bullet to New York today to complete, with the aid of metropolitan police scientists, the evidence on which authorities next Monday will seek an indictment of Martin Moore, 22, a gigantic young negro, for the murder of Helen Clevenger, 19-year-old New York university student.

Miss Clevenger was shot and clubbed to death with a gun butt in her room in the Battery Park hotel the night of July 16. Moore, a hotel hall boy, confessed the slaying yesterday to Sheriff L. E. Brown and two New York City detectives.

A gun loaded with cartridges of the type that killed Miss Clevenger—the gun taken to New York today—was found under the porch of his home.

Grand Jury Called

District Solicitor Zeb B. Nettles announced that he would ask a grand jury convening next Monday to indict Moore.

"We'll try him within the week and have this murder cleaned up in less than five weeks after it occurred," he said.

Another negro employee of the Battery Park hotel, Banks Taylor, a pantry boy, provided the clue that caused Moore to confess. Prior to that Sheriff Brown and that there were any Germans in the plane seized at Azuaga. Suspension of the Lufthansa service was explained as due to "local reasons." An embassy spokesman said it was hoped that the service might be resumed after a conference with the foreign ministry.

Azuaga, where according to the war ministry the Junkers armed plane was seized, is in an interesting location. It is 180 miles southwest of Madrid, and 80 miles southeast of Badajoz, the important railway junction on the Portuguese frontier. The country around Azuaga seems to be a checkerboard of loyalist and rebel holdings.

RECIPE FOR $20 BILLS RESULTING IN HUNT FOR MAN

Sheriff Charles Radcliff was patrolling roads near East Ringgold, Monday, in an effort to locate a man about 55 years of age, believed demented, who tried to sell a recipe in East Ringgold for making $20 bills.

Residents called the sheriff's department about the man early Monday. Sheriff Radcliff met him along a highway and asked him to ride to Circleville. He refused and when Radcliff told him he was the sheriff he drew a knife and ran through a field. The only weapon the sheriff carried was his revolver. He returned to Circleville for a gas gun and started a search of the vicinity. The man had not been located at noon.

Priest Refrains From Use

Sunday Speeches

ORDERS FROM VATICAN?

Union Not to Endorse Lemke
For President

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 10.—(UP)—Father Charles E. Coughlin made two speeches Sunday in which his remarks concerning President Roosevelt, Gov. Alf M. Landon, and controversial political questions were mild.

Reports from Vatican City last week said that Papal authorities had conferred with Father Coughlin's bishop, the Rev. M. J. Gallagher, about his political activities. Bishop Gallagher said he told Father Coughlin that he did not approve of a priest "calling people liars," referring to the term Father Coughlin applied to Mr. Roosevelt in a recent speech at Cleveland.

In speeches here and at Syracuse, N. J., yesterday, after Father Coughlin announced that his Union for Social Justice would not endorse the presidential candidacy of Rep. William Lemke officially, though, as one of Lemke's sponsors, he compared his record — to Lemke's credit — with those of President Roosevelt and Gov. Alf M. Landon, the Republican nominee.

Of "Hoop Skirt" Age

Here, Father Coughlin charged that Mr. Roosevelt, having "promised to drive the money changers from the temple," now was catering to big money interests in striving for re-election. Gov. Landon, he said, took his political philosophy from the "hoop skirt" age.

He also attacked Reps. Patrick J. Boland and John J. O'Connor for their opposition to the inflationary Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill.

In Syracuse he seemed to choose his words with great care in speaking of President Roosevelt.

"I do not mean to infer that President Roosevelt is a promise breaker," he said, "but that, rather, by driving the money changers from the temple, he means to drive rich people out of existence, and to make us all poor, perchance."

THIS TURKEY SINGS AND PECKS AT STUB OF CIGAR

British Protest Killing

LONDON, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Sir Henry Chilton, British ambassador, today protested to Spanish rebel authorities against the killing of Capt. Rupert Savile, British yachtsman, by shells from the rebel cruiser Almirante Cervera, and the wounding of Savile's wife.

The British protest reserved the right to claim compensation for the incident.

The protest was wirelessed. It is understood, from a British destroyer at St. Jean De Luz to rebel authorities.

BOY, 12, INJURED AT HOMECOMING

Edward Durthaler Falls 30
Feet From Ferris Wheel
To Ground

Topping about 30 feet from a ferris wheel at the Commercial Point homecoming celebration, Edward Durthaler, Jr., 12, Columbus, was in a serious condition Monday in Radium hospital with jaw and head fractures.

The youth is the son of Edward Durthaler, Columbus fish dealer, known in Pickaway county as "Eddie, the Fish Man."

The accident occurred Saturday evening. Persons near the ride said the youth was riding in a seat with a man. As they started upward the protecting rod on the seat is said to have come loose causing the seat to overturn. The man grasped the wheel and escaped uninjured.

Lands on Belt

As the youth fell the operator attempted to catch him. The boy landed on the belt driving the wheel, before falling to the ground. He was taken to Mercy hospital in the Finch ambulance. He was later transferred to Radium hospital.

The homecoming was one of the finest Commercial Point has ever conducted. Crowds were large and orderly, and well-supervised.

Prizes were awarded many individuals and clubs as a result of parades and other contests. The float of the Scioto Grain Co., Commercial Point, won first prize in the parade, the Sunshine club was second, and the Harrisburg United Brethren church third.

The Burnley family dominated the comic section with first and third prizes going to the entrants from the family. Second was won by the Hoover and Rodgers entry. In the decorated bicycle section, Leota Sprouse was first, Donald Lambert second, and Jackie Melvin third.

The horse show resulted in much competition, 16 entries being made in the colt division won by Myrl Hinton with Wayne Beavers second and Watson Neal third. In the yearling class, E. P. Hinton was first, Roy Thomas second and Dick Hutchins third. Dory Fausnaugh won in the two-year old with second and third going to Elmer Beavers.

C. V. Neal was president of the Homecoming Association and Sewell Beers was secretary.

COUNTY WILLING TO ASSIST CITY PAY FOR WALKS

Two of the three county commissioners, Ralph May and C. E. Wright, are willing for the county to stand one-half of the expenses for new sidewalks at the Memorial Hall. B. H. Rader, the third commissioner, said he would agree if other walks on Main street leading to the corner were improved.

Councilman Ben Gordon conferred with the commissioners Monday morning about the project. He will report the commissioners' views at the next regular meeting of council.

SERVICE IS SUSPENDED

500 Fascists, Monarchists
Reported Put in Jail

MADRID, Aug. 10.—(UP)—A war ministry statement asserted today that loyalists captured a German Junkers airplane, containing military armaments, at Azuaga 60 miles north of Seville, the rebel southern headquarters.

A few hours before the announcement the daily German Lufthansa airplane service between Madrid and Germany was suspended suddenly.

It was reported that the airplane captured was the identical airplane which loyalist sources said landed at Barajas airfield, near Madrid yesterday morning, and took off hurriedly after a brief talk between its pilot and a Lufthansa official.

Four Planes Seized

There were reports also that as soon as this plane left, loyalist authorities seized four Junkers airplanes which were waiting at Barajas airfield to evacuate German refugees.

The war ministry statement said that the airplane seized at Azuaga was of the Junkers "52" type and that it carried a crew of four.

Rumors were circulated that the plane was piloted by a German and that of the other three occupants two were Germans, the third a Spaniard.

The German embassy's only comment was an emphatic denial.

SEATTLE READY TO PAY TRIBUTE TO DEAD SOLON

SEATTLE, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Seattle tomorrow will conduct a huge public funeral for Representative Marion Anthony Zioncheck, the young Washington congressman who ended a spectacular career with a five story suicide leap from his office in a downtown building.

Arrangements of final details for the rites were delayed pending arrival by airplane of House Sergeant at Arms Kenneth A. Romney, who befriended Zioncheck during his last weeks in Washington, D. C.

The Washington Commonwealth Federation, one of Zioncheck's strongest supporters during his political career, aided the congressman's widow, Rubye Nix Zioncheck, in completing funeral and burial plans. Federation officials believed the rites would be among the largest in Seattle history.

United States Senators Homer T. Bone and Lewis B. Schwellenbach of Washington will be honorary pallbearers. With them will be Knute Hill, Martin F. Smith and Conrad C. Wallgren, Washington. Active pallbearers were not yet announced, but it was believed they will be intimate friends of the dashing representative, a Polish emigrant boy who was catapulted into congress as an aggressive, promising liberal leader.

Services will be held in Eagles auditorium in downtown Seattle. Mrs. Zioncheck had not indicated whether she wished the body buried or cremated.

20,000 FIGHT FOREST FIRES IN FIVE AREAS

Scores of Homes Burned As Flames Cover Big Central Region

ONE FATALITY REPORTED

Recruits Drafted From Resorts and Streets

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 10.—(UP)—Twenty thousand men fought with axes, shovels, portable pumps and water soaked burlap bags today to halt fires which swept through the forests of five north central states, burned scores of farms and summer lodges and forced settlers from their homes. Sheriffs' offices drafted emergency crews from among Sunday idlers on streets and in taverns of the fire area towns.

Flames menaced the Douglas county asylum and sanitarium in northern Wisconsin. Three hundred fighters stood guard in the dry fields around the building to protect it from the flames in adjoining forests.

Physicians feared that even if the flames were checked, they might have to remove patients suffering from the clouds of choking smoke.

Thousands Working

Flames which swept across the Canadian border into northern Minnesota advanced steadily despite the efforts of 7,000 weary, begrimed emergency workers, many of whom worked 48 hours without sleep. Early today the flames had blackened 25,000 acres of wilderness and appeared out of control.

Eight thousand men fought fires in northern Wisconsin. Several hundred more checked the blaze which has swept 6,000 acres of Isle Royale, in Lake Superior off the Michigan shore.

In South Dakota, 1,600 men were unable to do more than slow the progress of a wall of flames which has ravaged more than 3,000 acres.

The only known casualty was Archie Murphy, 19, of Sioux Falls, S. D., center of the fire-fighting efforts in South Dakota.

Workers fled the Homestake Mining Company lumber camp at Moskee, Wyo., when a fire which sprang in South Dakota leaped "back-fire" lanes and swept over the boundary out of control. A sudden change in the wind saved the camp.

C. D. Clark, assistant supervisor of the Black Hills National forest, said the fire there may not be stopped until the high winds abate or rain falls. He was unable to estimate the number of summer lodges in the now-blackened fire areas.

58 Homes Destroyed

At midnight last night, fires in northeastern Minnesota had destroyed 58 farm homes. All residents of Markham, Palo and Makinen fled their homes. Residents of 14 fire districts in western Minnesota were warned to be ready to evacuate. In Eveleth, residents clustered to stop the fire a half mile from the town limits. Other fires approached Hibbing, Cloquet and Cromwell, but were believed under control.

Rain checked the Minnesota fires last night, but did not last long enough to quench them.

Sheriff Arthur Sedin and deputies drafted fire fighting recruits from the taverns and streets in Superior, Wis.

Borah's Political Life At Stake in '36 Battle

William E. Borah

C. Ben Ross

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 10.—With the primary of Aug. 11 over Idaho will enter the most heated political battle in years.

The Lion of Idaho, William E. Borah, Republican, will battle C. Ben Ross, Democratic three-term governor, for re-election to the United States senate.

Borah, for the first time in his long career, is meeting a man politically as strong as he within the state.

Opposition in Primaries

Both men were subjected to opposition in the primaries. Byron Defenbach, of Boise, former state treasurer, supported by the Townsend forces, entered the lists against Borah. John A. Carver, blind attorney of Pocatello, at present United States attorney for Idaho, entered the race against Ross.

Townsend clubs sent out 75,000 letters urging voters to vote for Defenbach, not Borah, in the primary.

In the November election Borah will have strong support from farm areas but has been openly opposed by labor, Townsendism and many business groups. Ross is strong in Borah's weak sections.

The farm vote will prove the pinion upon which the outcome of the election will revolve. In spite of the fact that Idaho is expected to return a Democratic state administration to office, Borah's farm popularity will perhaps return him to office.

Favorable to Borah

There are those who would vote for Borah "just to let him have a last term at the job he has filled so long".

Others believe Borah's experience, "which Ross lacks", will prove highly valuable in the next congress "which has many vital duties yet to perform."

The Borah-Ross contest will overshadow the gubernatorial race. Eight Democrats and three Republicans entered the primary lists.

The center of interest lies in Borah. His friends believe another term will shorten his life; that he cannot survive the rigors of another term.

But Townsend forces came out against him and Ross' strength challenged him to accept the battle of his life—and there are no odds being posted against him.

NEW CITY HALL PROMISED FOR FAYETTE CITY

W.P.A. Approves Project to Cost $10,000; Much Work Planned

WASHINGTON, C. H., Aug. 10.—Work will start in the next two weeks on construction of a new city building for this city. It has been approved as a W.P.A. project.

The new municipal building, which includes practically the rebuilding of the present building, will be a two story brick structure, fronting 35 feet 3 inches in Fayette street, or extending from the alley to the south wall of the Fire Department building.

The present floor of the old building will be dropped to nearly sidewalk level, and the ceiling lowered several feet. The south wall of the old structure will be repaired and additional windows cut in it.

The north portion of the new structure, first floor, will be occupied by the City Auditor and Sewage Rental collection office. The city garage will be back of these offices.

The police court and police headquarters will occupy the present portion of the building.

The second floor will be used for council rooms, City Manager's private office and the Chief of Police's private office.

The rear portion of the building will be rebuilt with reinforced concrete walls for the city prison for men, and the women's jail will be on the second floor.

A side door will be so built that prisoners may be placed in the jail from the alley instead of through the front way.

The city pays $2500 toward the project, and the government $7,500, that after nearly a quarter of a century of effort, and handicapped by short finances, the city will obtain a fairly presentable, and at least practical building for a small expenditure.

CITY HAILS BUDGETEER

MONTEREY, Cal. (UP)—This city is taking off its hat to City Manager B. J. Pardee. He figured out so accurately a year in advance the city's budget for the past year, its revenues and expenditures, that he only missed the mark by $226. The citizen's even forgave the fact that the $226 is on the red side of the ledger.

RICHARD CLARK TO WIN HEARING IN OHIO PRISON

Richard Clark, former Circleville baseball player, will receive a parole hearing at the Ohio penitentiary Sept. 1. He has been an inmate of the institution since May 7, 1934, serving a burglary and larceny charge.

Clark, believed at one time to have a bright future in baseball, took part in several store and service station thefts in the last several years. Efforts of a number of influential friends to gain his parole met with rebuffs when the accused man refused to accept aid.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

SPARKLING with a highly individual brand of humor, "The Bride Walks Out" scored a decided laugh hit at the Cliftona theatre yesterday.

The film is a romantic comedy—but a romantic comedy of a breathless, dizzy type with one riotous situation following another.

Barbara Stanwyck, heretofore known for dramatic performances, surprises by revealing herself as a comedienne of exceptional ability, and swaps laughs and crackling repartee on even terms with such mirth-makers as Gene Raymond and Robert Young, her rival leading men, and with Ned Sparks and Helen Broderick. This quintet keeps the laughs in high gear, and with the aid of sharply-etched characterizations and a grand screenplay, makes "The Bride Walks Out" a not-to-be-missed rare entertainment.

COUNTY PROVIDES DATA TO CIVIL SERVICE BOARD

The Ohio Civil Service Commission sent letters, Friday, to all county officials asking data concerning their offices preparatory to taking steps toward placing all county employees under civil service.

The communication asks a report of the complete payroll roster, including names, salaries and titles of all workers.

It is believed only a few Pickaway county employees would be placed under civil service since most of the workers are deputies and not clerks or stenographers.

THE VIENNESE ROOF ATOP THE FAMOUS ST. REGIS HOTEL IN NEW YORK duplicates the resplendent ballroom of the Imperial Summer Palace in Schönbrunn, Austria. A model of decorative taste and justly famous for the excellence of its choice dishes, The Viennese Roof is a favorite rendezvous of those who wish to escape from the summer heat and enjoy themselves in cool and charming surroundings. Here at the St. Regis, as at other fine dining places from coast to coast, Camels are the preferred cigarette. "Our patrons understand the art of dining well," says Lawrence, deft maitre d'hôtel of The Viennese Roof. "You can see Camels on nearly every table. They certainly are the most popular cigarette at The Viennese Roof."

CHAMPION DIVER. Mickey Riley says: "Camels help my digestion. I enjoy them at my meals and afterwards. Boy, Camels have a great taste!" Camels never get on your nerves—never tire your taste.

AS EVERY Camel smoker knows, Camels at mealtime help to create a cheery sense of well-being. You eat with relish—digest with greater ease. Camels increase the flow of digestive fluids...alkaline digestive fluids...in a pleasant way.

Like Frank Buck, Lee Gehlbach, Mickey Riley, Bill Tilden, Tony Manero, Willie Hoppe, and millions of other discriminating smokers who prefer Camels and recommend them, you too will find Camels an enjoyable aid in easing the tension of modern life. With their "lift"...their aid to digestion...and their mild, rich flavor, Camels do indeed set you right!

Each Camel at mealtime adds its measure of cheer...stimulates digestion...increases alkalinity. So—

"For Digestion's Sake... Smoke Camels."

MRS. NICHOLAS PENNIMAN, III, charming Baltimore hostess. "I enjoy Camels," she says. "Camels taste so good and they help digestion too."

"LIKE SO MANY OF THE GIRLS, I prefer a mild cigarette—Camels," says Miss Frances Morel, machine operator. "I smoke Camels with my meals and after them too. They are swell!"

COSTLIER TOBACCOS
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

AMERICA'S NO. 1 TEST PILOT—Lee Gehlbach does his daring "power dive." Afterwards he eats heartily—and smokes Camels. Lee says: "Camels keep my digestion tuned up. And they don't frazzle my nerves."

NEW HOLLYWOOD RADIO TREAT! Camel Cigarettes bring you a FULL HOUR'S ENTERTAINMENT! Benny Goodman...Nat Shilkret...Rupert Hughes, Master of Ceremonies...Hollywood Guest Stars. Tuesday—8:30 pm E.S.T. (9:30 p.m. E.D.S.T.), 7:30 pm C.S.T., 6:30 pm M.S.T., 5:30 pm P.S.T. over WABC-Columbia Network.

Freeze for one-half hour and remove from refrigerator. Beat well and add stiffly beaten egg white. Return to refrigerator and freeze until firm, stirring every half hour.

Maple Cream Gingerale

- Gingerale

Put maple syrup in bottom of a chilled glass. Add cream. Blend with a silver fork and fill glass with gingerale. Mix until frothy and serve at once.

Wife Preservers

Fresh lemon juice and grated rind are best to flavor sponge cake.

Rock salt dissolved in water, as much as the water will take up, will destroy grass growing between the flags of a back yard. Pour the solution into the cracks.

Frosty Beverages

Quenching thirst on scorching hot days is the assignment for summer beverages. There is nothing quite so cooling and refreshing as a drink from a glass coated with frost.

Fruit juices saved from dessert or salad fruits assist in adding flavor and color to midsummer drinks. Raspberry juice tints and flavors this pineapple-ade.

- Pineapple-ade
- 1 C. water

- 1 C. canned crushed pineapple
- 1 C. raspberry juice
- Juice of 1 lemon

Mix all ingredients together and keep in automatic refrigerator until ready to serve. Serve in tall glasses with gingerale ice cubes and fresh mint leaves.

Fruited Punch

- 3 C. water
- 1 No. 1 can loganberry juice
- 1/2 C. maraschino cherries
- 1 No. 1 can pineapple juice
- 1 pint gingerale

Add water to loganberry juice. Add pineapple and cherry juices to the cherries which have been chopped. Add gingerale. Serve over crushed ice with sprig of fresh mint garnish. Sweeten to taste. Serves 6-8.

Quaker Punch

- 1/2 C. boiling water
- 1/2 Tbsp. tea
- 1/2 C. sugar
- 1 C. fruit juice
- 1 or 2 lemons
- 1 or 2 oranges
- Few grains salt
- 1 pt. charged water or gingerale

Four boiling water over tea. Let stand 5 minutes. Strain over sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. When cold, add fruit juice or syrup from canned fruit. Cut lemon and orange in halves. Cut 2 slices from each and cut slices in halves, then squeeze juice from remainder. Add lemon juice and orange juice to taste, then salt. Pour punch over ice cubes which have been placed in glasses. Dilute with charged water, gingerale or plain water. Garnish with half-slices of lemon and orange and with fresh mint leaves if convenient.

SPARKS FROM SPAIN

IF, as Communist Russia has warned, war is very near, what part will the Spanish revolution play in carrying the torch close again to the European powder keg? A rather wide stretch of the imagination may be required to link the slaughter in Spain to the situation envisioned by Moscow, but, after all, was there a single prophet who considered the murder at Sarajevo twenty-two years ago and foretold the swift succession of events that would plunge the whole world into a war a few months later?

Russia sees herself as the ultimate objective of attack by an alliance which will include Japan on the East, and Germany, Italy and Poland on the West. In fact, Japan has shown a disposition toward aggression and Hitler has more than once indicated, notably in the story of his life, that when the time comes for Germany to seek more land for her growing millions she will logically turn to Russia.

But Russia has not been unmindful of these designs. In anticipation of the coming of the day when her enemies will attempt to slice off acreage from her Eastern and Western frontiers, she has developed the strongest army in the world, numerically, and the most formidable air force. Furthermore, every phase of her national life is being influenced toward ends that will serve military needs in an emergency. Russia will not be found unaware.

Will events in Spain hasten the coming of the day when Europe will witness a recurrence of the scene of twenty-two years ago, when the armies of the world were on the move? It is impossible to answer this question. It is at least certain, however, that the situation has incendiary dangers when Italy sends planes and supplies to the Spanish rebels, and when France has a Government that is itching to support the Leftists in Spain and, observing Italy's activities, sits bolt upright and threatening.

Both Italy and Germany are interested in overthrowing the present Spanish Government, while the interests of France lie in its survival. Once these governments attempt to give practical aid to the particular side they favor by sending airplanes, supplies or troops into Spain, the European war will be on and it will spread like wild fire.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

BILL GREEN JUMPY AS A CAT
WASHINGTON—It was probably the unhappiest half hour in Bill Green's life. Although he was seated in an air-cooled room, his face was clammy with perspiration. His hands shook with nervousness.

He was about to announce the suspension of the ten insurgent unions—including his own United Mine Workers—from membership in the American Federation of Labor, of which he is President, if they continued their affiliation with John L. Lewis's Committee for Industrial Organization.

Opposite him stood a small army of newspapermen, awaiting the news. They lost no time in opening up on him.

"Mr. Green, does the action of the Executive Council today mean that the suspended unions will not be able to vote in the Federation's convention next November?"

"The convention will decide."
"Will the suspended unions be allowed to take part in the convention?"

"That's up to the credentials committee," Green answered.

"Who picks the credentials committee?" Green hit the ceiling. Pointing his finger at the newsman, he roared: "Why do you ask that? Are you imputing something dishonest?"

"Now, Bill," chided another reporter, "take it slow. Don't yell and don't talk so fast. We don't want to miss any of these pearls."

Green glared.

From the Green conference the newspapermen crossed the street to the offices of the United Mine Workers to interview John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee of the suspended unions.

"Mr. Lewis," asked a correspondent, "do you people contemplate court action to enjoin the Council?"

"No," was the smiling rejoinder. "We are afraid that if we do we might win."

SILENCER

The United States Chamber of Commerce, parent of all Chamber of Commerce, has issued many a blast against New Deal "boondoggling." But the next time one of these fusillades is uncorked, the WPA is all set to slap back with a very interesting exhibit.

It consists of a picture taken in Albuquerque, N. M., showing a handsome community center built with government money and housing a number of local civic bodies. On the outside is a large sign proudly proclaiming:

from obsolescence and launched on a fresh phase of usefulness.

The incident reminds us, however, that another implement, no longer much employed in the game for which it was designed, is allowed to decay in idleness. We refer to the jigsaw puzzle. This also could be hurled at an ex-wife, and it would be infinitely more effective in that capacity than a puzzle book.

Hurling a 300-piece jigsaw puzzle and letting it scatter, an actor might hit not merely one actress ex-wife. He might hit nearly all of them.

Gay Elwell, check girl in a prominent Detroit club, meets a number of social elite when she fills in at a dinner party at the request of Dr. Wilson, a club member. One of them is Breck Carter. Gay has a date with him but leaves him in a huff when he becomes intoxicated and too attentive. Gay is attracted by Wayne Adams but he has shown little interest in her. She goes to the opening of a new night club with Christian Scott, elderly millionaire. At Rose Heath Gay meets Wayne Adams and they stroll on the terrace for a talk. Gay is thrilled when Wayne kisses her. The next day she goes out for supper between double shifts at the checkroom. Wayne runs into Gay at the restaurant. Back at the checkroom Peggy Pennell, Breck's fiancée, has accused Gay of stealing her jewels which she said were in her coat when she checked it earlier in the afternoon. Wayne Adams appears on the scene and finds Peggy's jewels in the lining of her own coat. Gay is grateful to him. On Sunday Gay goes for a drive with Tim Keenan, a millionaire. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 18

THE CAR was powerful, and Gay liked the way Tim drove, with speed and cool expertness as they went for a Sunday ride. She liked his hands, too; large, knobby-knuckled, work hands, strong as steel.

She liked, especially, that he made no effort to touch her. He was just pleasant, and talked easily as he drove. It had not been his usual Sunday, he said. He generally played 18 holes of golf with Eleanor Randolph—but she had started the night before, on her way across the Atlantic. He had lunched at the club, played billiards with an old crony, and at his suggestion had arranged to round up a few men friends and their girls for a little informal affair at Tim's shack, 25 miles northeast, on Lake Paradise.

"The party'll be made up of old men like me," Tim grinned at her, "and pretty young things like you, Gay. Get me?"

Gay made no answer. She had heard his age—42, but though his red hair was streaked with gray, and his rugged face showed lines about the eyes and mouth, there was tremendous vitality about the man that fascinated her. And she loved his smile; quick, unexpected, showing fine white teeth.

"Tell me everything about yourself," he invited, lighting a cigar skillfully in the rush of the wind. Gay laughed. "There's nothing interesting to tell about me—except that I'm enjoying every minute of this."

"I really want to know. Where do you hail from? What did you do, before this check girl job?" So she told him briefly of her life in Traverse City, and the three months' position in Detroit that had preceded her present job at the Pontchartrain club.

Their eyes met, and something in his glance and his next words puzzled her. "Simple as that? You're a clever youngster."

She was still trying to fathom his meaning, when he swung the car onto a country road, lined on either side with majestic trees. He had been driving a steady 60 for some time; now Gay realized with a tingle of excitement that the car was doing 90.

"This is the life," she exulted. "Part of it was. Brought over from France, you know, till take you all over the place, sometime. It's several thousand acres, he explained casually. "Just a moment, Gay."

There was a rapid exchange of questions and answers between the master and a man servant who had appeared suddenly. Gay barely had time for a glimpse of the wooded estate sloping down to the rim of the privately owned lake; of gardens, pools, fountains with high-playing jets of water, statues and seats alluringly backgrounded by trees and shrubbery, before Tim led her into the house.

"You're braver than Eleanor."

Gay stood still, speechless, in the great entrance hall. Her amazement and radiant appreciation brought crinkles of laughter to the corners of Tim's eyes, and this laughter quickly spread to his lips.

"I wouldn't have missed seeing your face for anything, youngster! I wish Eleanor could, too. Wake up, Gay. It's real!"

Gay wanted, almost, to rub her eyes. It couldn't be real. It must be a dream. There couldn't be such a revelation to her. The house was a revelation of splendid dignified rooms. Rugs like deep moss. Marble fireplaces. Carved cabinets. Paintings. Everywhere a luxury and beauty that took Gay's breath away and dazzled her unaccustomed eyes.

"I didn't know you lived in such a gorgeous place," she cried, still too excited for clear speech.

"A pretty big shack for one man," Tim said. "That's why I like plenty of people around. Parties, and that sort of thing. And speaking of parties, my butler tells me the party for this evening blew up for some darn reason. But I hope you won't get lonesome here, with just me."

She smiled quizzically. "You said you like to swim, didn't you? All right—let's go find suits."

Gay agreed, still all eyes, as he guided her to an electric lift at the end of an intricate maze of halls.

"The air's warm for May," Tim remarked, "but the lake's still too chilly for outdoor baignings. We'll use the pool." He pressed a button, and the lift ascended.

Presently Gay found herself being ministered to by a chic French maid, in a dressing room with bath, that for beauty and lavishness exceeded her wildest imaginings. Satin walls, hangings, Empire furniture, all in the palest green. A bewildering array of platinum-and-green toilet articles on the dressing table, and a sunken tub of pale-green marble in a silver-and-green bathroom!

"Mademoiselle looks charming," murmured Celeste, the maid, when she had outfitted Gay in a scarlet one-piece bathing suit, with cap and slippers to match.

And Timothy said the same thing in different words when Gay went to meet him. She saw something light in his eyes as he inspected her.

"You have pleasant ankles," was his only remark, and together they shot down, Gay didn't know how many stories, to a large, perfectly equipped pool.

"This is just too wonderful for words!" Gay found her voice at last. "It's the thrilling thing that's ever happened to me."

They were in and out of the pool for an hour. Gay, who swam only fairly well, improved her stroke and found enough courage to practice one or two of the more difficult dives under Tim's direction.

"I learned to dive last winter at the 'Y,'" Gay told him, when they were resting in the big chairs on the pool-rim. "But it still scares me a little."

"You're braver than Eleanor," Tim said, and Gay could see that he really adored Eleanor Randolph. It shone in his eyes whenever he mentioned her. "I've always been a water rat, myself. I was born on old River street, down in Detroit, and swam like a fish as long as I can remember."

He made Gay do the jack-knife dive several times, then masterfully ordered, "Dress now, and let's eat. Don't be long! It puts me in a devil of a temper if I'm kept waiting."

Gay promised to be quick, and hurried to do his bidding.

But after she had taken off the bathing suit in the sea-green bathroom, she couldn't resist the impulse to waste a few minutes in a dance of sheer, wild joy. What fun she was having—how much she'd have to tell Jean, when she got home again!

Another delightful surprise was added to the pleasant arrangements Tim had made for her. She wore down to dinner, not her limp little white silk dress, but a Chinese costume: wide trousers and Mandarin coat of dark blue silk heavily embroidered in gold; her small feet appearing still smaller in Chinese slippers repeating the color and design.

"How you say—very exotique!" Celeste exclaimed. Dinner was served in an informal, not too large dining room, done in Spanish style; a part of his own private suite, Tim informed Gay. He added that Eleanor had worked with the interior decorators over this part of the house; she herself had selected the furniture and the magnificent El Greco painting that hung over the fireplace.

"You're an attractive youngster, Gay. I like you even better than I'd expected to. I think we'd get along quite well together." He gave her a long, steady, significant look.

High Blood Pressure Cause Not Discovered

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE BLOOD pressure is low in all infants and most children, and gradually rises as age advances. There is a small rise in nearly everyone at the age of about 15, then it falls, and at 25 again begins to rise. What is the cause of this rise with advancing age? I believe it is pretty generally agreed among physicians that this rise is due to the change which occurs in the arteries of the body during these advancing decades. The arteries become less elastic and "harder", as the popular phrase has it; this is an inevitable accompaniment of growing older. This being so, it is easy to understand why this should cause a rise in blood pressure. Because the only purpose of blood pressure is to keep all the organs and tissues of the body supplied with blood. If this did not happen, life would end.

And in pressing the blood out into all these tissues, there are two or three factors at work. The force exerted by the heart is one. It thrusts the blood out into the arterial tree. And when those arteries are elastic and pliable, they open up to receive the tide of blood from the heart, and then squeeze down upon it and press it out into every crevice of the body. This elasticity of the arterial bed is the second factor. The blood can be distributed at much less pressure when the arteries are young and pliable than when they have gotten stiff and have lost their elastic power of compression.

In searching for the cause of high blood pressure, then, we must search for the cause of this change in the arteries. Everything Blamed. Meat, drink, tobacco, tea, coffee, climate, worry, activity, race, temperament, heredity, occupation, physique, wars, the countless glands, the state of the world—nearly everything except the New Deal has been blamed.

The idea which has attracted the largest number of American and English students of the subject is that the high tension of modern life, especially modern American life, causes the high pressure. But, again, the broad view dispels this into limbo. The American Negro is not notable for living at high tension, nor for straining unduly in the face of life, yet experience is agreed that high blood pressure is probably commoner among the Negroes than among their white brethren.

Poems That Live

TO THE ROSE: A SONG

Go, happy rose, and interweave
With other flowers, bind my love.
Tell her, too, she must not be
Longer flowing, longer free
That so oft has fettered me.
Say, if she's fretful, I have bands
Of pearl and gold to bind her hands:
Tell her, if she struggles still,
I have myrtle rods at will
For to tame, though not to kill.
Take thou my blessing thus, and go
And tell her this—but do not so!
Lest a handsome angler fly
Like a lightning from her eye,
And burn thee up, as well as I!
—Robert Herrick.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up early on a beautiful morn to be greeted by visitors from Sidney, John Whitney, his pleasant wife and two charming daughters. John, a former Chamber of Commerce secretary of wide reputation, tired of bouncing all over the United States and chose a small town in which to make his home and rear his family. Wise man. He opened a Credit Bureau in Sidney, declared "I'll fight it out along this line if I starve to death." Almost did for a year, but now is prospering greatly. Which proves that a man of intelligence and energy can accomplish almost anything to which he sets his mind.

By waggon about the ville and for the first time was ashamed of the community. Never have seen a dirtier district than Court and High streets. Had all the earmarks of a scrap paper dealer's storage yard after a cyclone. City council either should prohibit the placing of handbills in and on automobiles Saturday or should provide means for an early morning cleanup Sunday. Tourists passing through the city by scores, so wondered just what impression of Circleville they carried with them. Hurried to the country where found everything bright and clean and pointed with pride to the many fine farms where green is beginning to show again after the long drought.

Entirely too much dinner and then an afternoon of lazy conversation in which did learn that the guest is inclined to the belief that the Anti-New Deal Democrats will defeat Roosevelt, an idea with which did not agree. Howbeit, there was much food for thought in arguments advanced by the visitor. Discussed mutual friends and learned of the death of Jay Miles after whose grandfather Miles City, Mont., was named. Knew that district well before it was ruined by a government that bet butchers, bakers and candlestick makers 320 acres of land they would starve to death in three years. Some of the Easterners won, for the time being, but now are burned out by the great drought and a vast territory once more will revert to stockmen. Recalled one county, Custer, which is somewhat larger than counties as we know them here, being 150 miles long and extending in width 100 miles northward from the Wyoming line. A lovely land for a vacation, but no place in which to live, really. Irv Kinsey, manager of the Penney store, knows the country well, having busted horses there as a kid.

Hear increasing talk of the Pumpkin Show and anxiously await my first experiences in that great event about which did learn long before coming to the ville. Wonder when the light rate question will be settled and whether city council will accept the provision that discriminates against the business men of the city who are in the minority, but who, after all, make this a city? Only as the merchants thrive can the ville, including the power company, thrive. Business is the heartbeat of this city.

DEGENER LEADS WORLD SWIMMERS AS DIVING CONTEST IS HALF ENDED

DETROIT YOUTH AHEAD OF JAP STAR IN POINTS

American Holds Third and Fourth; Nipponese Showing Speed

OLYMPIC SWIMMING POOL, BERLIN, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Dick Degener of Detroit restored some of America's damaged national prestige today when took an unofficial lead at the conclusion of the five compulsory dives of the men's Olympic springboard competition.

Degener, before a crowd of 15,000 that gave him spontaneous applause, amassed an unofficial total of 98.06 points out of a possible 100. Considered by many to be the world's best diver, the Detroit youth, who was third in 1932, drew the first ovation from the crowd on his first dive, a front somersault.

Behind the American in the unofficial standings came Tsueno Shibahara of Japan with 95.4 points. Marshall Wayne of Miami was third with 94.70 and Al Greene of Chicago was fourth with 94.40. Wayne was adopted as a favorite by the crowd, which murmured its disapproval when he received the low of 13.14 points on the fifth dive, a front jackknife with a half twist.

Under the Olympic rules each diver must perform five established dives and five optional dives. After each dive a buzzer is sounded and each judge displays the number of points he thinks the dive warranted. The highest and lowest figures held up by the seven judges, each from a different nation, is disregarded. The other five are averaged.

The five established or compulsory dives are the front somersault, back dive pike, half gainer, cutaway somersault pike, and front jackknife with half twist, in that order. Degener scored 15.30, 15.13, 17.39, 13.95, 13.86. His half gainer drew the highest individual score, 17.39, of any dive.

Because of his superlative finesse, swimming experts installed the Detroit youth as the favorite for the optional dives which will be held on Tuesday instead of today as originally planned.

When the divers left the new blue-bottomed pool, lanes were drawn for the 800 meters relay for men. Japan immediately showed it was prepared to vigorously defend the water events title it won in 1932 when its combination set an Olympic record of eight minutes 56.1 seconds breaking the record of 8:58.4 it set at Los Angeles. Germany qualified in second place.

The United States also impressed in winning its heat but the difference in times led to the installation of Japan as favorite. The American combination of Charles Hunter, Ralph Gilman, Paul Wolf and Jack Medica, staged a runaway race and were 30 meters ahead of the second Hungarians in 9:10.4. Poland was disqualified in this heat for beating the gun.

YESTERDAY'S HERO: Lou Gemrig who homered in the first game, and whose triple with the bases loaded drove in all the runs in the second game as New York's Yankees won a doubleheader from the Philadelphia Athletics.

GILMORE PLAYS TO GOLF FINAL, BEATING MADER

Jenkins and Adkins Meet This Week For Right To Vie For Title

Charles T. Gilmore, chairman of the greens committee, has reached the finals in the Pickaway Country club golf tournament through an upset victory over Johnny Mader 2 up and 1 to go Sunday afternoon.

The Tom Gilliland and Claude Kraft match, which ended in a tie at 18 holes, was played off Sunday with Kraft winning. He then took on Mader, and lost 2 to 1.

Mader and Gilmore were paired up the same day.

Adkins reached the semi-finals by defeating John Eshelman 1 up in a brilliant match, Eshelman failing to down an 8-foot putt on the final green which would have won the hole for him and squared the match.

About This And That In Many Sports

Short Has Chance

Harry Short, one of Circleville's exponents to the trotting game, has an entry in the fast Hambletonian to be run at Goshen, N. Y. on Wednesday — Short's entry is Gaitly Mite, which ran a good second to Rosalind, the favorite, in a preliminary last week — All Circleville hopes Short can come through to victory or high in the money — Add to Circleville's interested race horse folk Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wolf — They own a couple of good horses that have been making county fairs. ***

Flowers to Trio

Flowers to Elmer Wolf, Robert Musser and Bernard Young for the efforts they are planning to make the Pumpkin Show horse show the best in history — Showing entries are being sought with the premium list increased to a near-suitable amount to assure success. ***

Ohio Tennis Meet

The central Ohio tennis tournament will be held in Chillicothe August 19 — J. C. Wilkins is accepting entries. ***

Owens Rates Title

Jesse Owens should be rated an athletic immortal — His showing in the Olympic track and field competition gave him three first places alone and another as a member of the 400-meter relay team — Mr. Adolph Hitler, Germany's big chest man, completely ignored Mr. Owens — No hard feelings on the part of Owens, he doesn't like to shake a hostile hand anyway, and that is what Hitler has been through the entire meet. Just another argument for "Why were the Olympics held in Berlin at this time? ***

Goeller Is Winner

Billy Goeller, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Goeller, won the 5-mile bicycle race at Smith's oval Saturday afternoon — He received a merchandise prize from stores sponsoring the event ***

RED BIRDS LOSE TO KASEYS; MOVE ON TO ST. PAUL

COLUMBUS, Aug. 10.—(UP)—The Red Birds will open their stand against St. Paul there today after extending their losses to six out of the last seven starts by losing to Kansas City yesterday, 9 to 3.

The Blues jumped into an early lead by registering five tallies in the first inning against the hurling of Bill McGee. Nick Cullop lost a fly in the glaring sun to aid the Blues.

Al Fisher pitched well for Columbus in the last five innings but the damage was done by that time.

AUSTRALIA, which has gained the Davis cup challenge round for the first time since 1924, has been in the challenge round 12 times—1907, 1908, 1908, 1911, 1912, 1914, 1919, 1920, 1922, 1923, 1924 and 1936. Australia (as Australasia) won the cup in 1907, 1908, 1909, 1911, 1914, 1919.

Charles Butterworth To Head Lineup For Rudy Vallee Program

NEW YORK CLUB STAR IS BOOKED FOR BROADCAST

Bing Crosby Offers Merle Oberon, Skipworth and Others

Charles Butterworth, currently on the high seas en route from Europe to the United States, will arrive in New York in time to head Rudy Vallee's Variety Hour guest star list next Thursday, August 13. Another personality, now in the public eye, whom Rudy will bring to the broadcast over a WEAF-NBC network at 7 p. m. (EST) is Josephine Huston, New York night club singer.

Butterworth, the hesitant humorist from Hollywood who got his start on the New York musical comedy stage, is on his way back to the screen city. He stops off at Radio City long enough to rehearse and broadcast in the Vallee Hour.

New York columnists have been predicting a great future for Miss Huston, who has been a leading attraction of the Hollywood Restaurant on Broadway. She will sing several new popular tunes on the program. Other entertainment with a timely angle will be announced in a few days.

CROSBY BOOKS STARS

Merle Oberon and Alison Skipworth, dealers respectively in glamour and comedy, will represent the movies in Bing Crosby's Music Hall program next Thursday, August 13. Another contrast just as vivid from the field of music brings Josephine Tumminia, of the San Francisco Opera, and Louis Armstrong, who fairly lays claim to the title of "world's hottest trumpeter," to the same guest star bill.

Bing, as singing star and master of ceremonies of the show, also presents Bob Burns, pride of Arkansas, returning after a one-week absence from the air, and Jimmy Dorsey's band. The broadcast will be on the air over a WEAF-NBC network at 9 p. m.

Bing plans to interview the Misses Oberon and Skipworth in another of his highly informal human interest examinations. Previous sessions of the same kind have revealed several colorful but little known anecdotes of Hollywood.

Miss Tumminia, a coloratura, made her debut at the San Francisco Opera last season. Early this year she was introduced to radio listeners by Sigmund Romberg in his broadcasts from Hollywood. Some months ago she also appeared as Bing's guest in the Music Hall and popular response earned her another date. She will sing a group of numbers from the soprano repertoire.

Louis Armstrong, jumping into the Manhattan limelight from the dusky "little Broadway" that runs through Harlem, has astounded radio listeners and cabaret patrons for years with his pyrotechnics on the trumpet. As an exponent of "hot jazz" he vies with Jimmy Dorsey's swing band for rhythm honors in this show.

"DUCKLESS CYCLE" ENDS

SISKIYOU, Cal. (UP)—The duck depression of the past five years that has been driving sportsmen to buy them at the butcher's is being gradually broken. Heavy rains in the nesting regions of northern Canada is what broke the back of the "duckless cycle."

CARMEL THEATER DOOMED

CARMEL, Cal. (UP)—Real estate is more valuable than art. The nationally known Forest Theater, where some of the nation's leading artists appeared in experimental drama is to be divided and sold for residential lots. As an open air theater it did not pay.

RATE INCREASE APPEAL DROPPED BY LOCAL FIRM

COLUMBUS, Aug. 10—(UP)—Inability to get a three-judge court in time to consider an injunction against a rate increase ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission caused John W. Eschelman & Sons, Circleville, to dismiss its case against the commission.

The petition was filed July 10, asking suspension of the commission order, which imposed Columbus rates upon grain shipments of the Circleville firm.

The commission had suspended the order until Jan. 1, 1937. But on July 6 the order was vacated and July 13 was set as the effective date for the increased rates. The firm was unable to obtain a three-judge hearing before that date.

The case will be heard by the commission sometime in the fall.

ASTOR - THORPE FIGHT RESUMES

Efforts to Submit Part of Diary to Court Result In Fight

wood, and his beautiful wife, Norma Shearer.

It was believed the movie magnates asked Thalberg to intervene as mediator.

It was known that Thalberg talked with Miss Astor and other persons connected with the case. His secretary said, however, that he had not attempted to advise either party of the controversy, and would not "unless there is a concrete plan for settlement."

Thalberg and wife spent a busy weekend. Their limousine was seen to stop at M-G-M studio, where both work, and at United Artists studio, where Miss Astor is completing a leading role in "Dodsworth," for Samuel Goldwyn.

Attorneys for both sides were cognizant of the peace moves on several fronts, but professed to know of nothing at present which would stem the flow of red-hot testimony from the lips of Miss Astor and her diary.

Joseph Anderson, counsel for Dr. Thorpe, and R. R. Woolley, Astor lawyer, were prepared to fight over the admission of the 200 page diary.

"All or Nothing"

Anderson demands that "certain sections" of the diary be admitted to evidence as mandatory to the case of Dr. Thorpe. Woolley wants all of the diary introduced, or not one line. He alleges Anderson is afraid to introduce all of the book, which Miss Astor says was stolen from her boudoir by Dr. Thorpe.

Judge Knight has intimated he will admit only those portions of the flaming volumes which have direct bearing on which of the embattled parents shall have custody of little Marilyn Thorpe, who plays around her mother's Toluca estate gleefully ignorant of what is happening in the courtroom downtown.

George S. Kaufman, Broadway playwright, with from Miss Astor admitted an affair, was scheduled to appear in the courtroom today in answer to a subpoena. Dr. Thorpe's attorneys wish to provide through Kaufman that it was the actress and not Dr. Thorpe, who wanted the divorce obtained by the doctor in 1935. Terms of the divorce constitute part of the present struggle and will be settled after the end of the child custody case in a second court action.

Miss Astor gave Dr. Thorpe custody of the baby and a property settlement in exchange for freedom. Now she wants return of the child, a re-settlement of property and an annulment instead of divorce.

It was said that Kaufman may take a chance and not answer his subpoena.

Circleville's curfew, warning children under 15 years of age to be off the streets, will ring at 8:30 p. m. Monday. The fire bell will be tapped four times.

Police have been instructed by Mayor W. J. Graham to see that no children are loitering on the streets after that hour.

THE MAYTAG SEDIMENT TRAP makes clothes cleaner!

When Maytag introduced the cast-aluminum tub washer, with Gyrtator washing action, new speed and gentleness were brought to home washing. But there is another reason why a Maytag makes the clothes so clean and white. It is the sediment trap underneath the Gyrtator in the bottom of the tub. The grit and grime collect in this trap, instead of being washed back into the clothes. This is just one of many advantages which won world leadership for the Maytag. Each week a Maytag creates savings to help provide the easy payments. Any Maytag available with gasoline Multi-Motor.

COLORED HOTEL WORKER ADMITS CO-ED'S DEATH

Detectives' Clever Trick Wrings Confession From Martin Moore, 22

made no progress toward a solution, although at various times they had arrested and released six persons, including Moore.

Taylor told the sheriff Thursday after keeping quiet three weeks in fear of becoming involved, that Moore owned "an old Spanish pistol." Ballistics experts already had determined that the gun that killed Miss Clevenger was of a caliber not manufactured in the United States so Brown questioned Moore again.

Two New York detectives came here Friday to help him. One was John Quinn, who a few months ago was credited with a major part in finding the slayer of Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton, short story writer, who was murdered in her New York apartment. The other was Sgt. Thomas Martin of the New York homicide squad.

The sheriff, Quinn and Martin went together to Moore's home. "What did you do with the pistol you killed the girl with?" Brown abruptly demanded.

Blamed Another

Moore trembled visibly, the officers said. He attempted no evasion about the gun, but tried to lay the slaying on another negro hotel worker.

"The gun's under that porch there," Moore said, pointing at a corner of his three room, tumbling down house. "But I didn't kill her. I didn't know nothin' about it. Roddy killed her."

Then he asserted, in a seizure of fright that the policemen said made him almost unintelligible, that he had loaned the gun before Miss Clevenger was slain to L. D. Roddy, a Battery Park hotel bell boy. Roddy returned it, he said, after the killing.

The policemen arranged a unique inquisition to break his story.

In a room at police headquarters they concealed a dictaphone. Then they put, Moore, Roddy and Taylor into the room together and ostensibly left them alone.

"You boys talk this over and decide who's lying," Sheriff Brown told them. "I'll be back in 30 minutes."

Immediately he slammed the door, he Quinn, and Sgt. Martin

seated themselves before the dictaphone amplifier and listened.

Details Revealed

Roddy had been told that Moore accused him of having had the gun the night Miss Clevenger was slain. He and Taylor went to work on Moore together. The policemen refused to reveal details of what was said, except that Taylor said to Moore:

"There's no use you bein' a fool and lyin' about this thing any longer. The sheriff'll find out you didn't loan your gun to Roddy."

"They got so mad they were almost ready to fight when I opened the door again," Brown said. "Moore was washed up. 'I'll talk,' he said right away."

He dictated a confession to a stenographer, then went to Miss Clevenger's hotel room and re-enacted the crime for photographers.

Miss Clevenger was killed at about 1 a. m. She and her uncle, Prof. W. L. Clevenger of North Carolina State College at Raleigh, had gone to their rooms early in the night but the girl, after donning pajamas, sat up writing letters and making an entry in her diary. It had been guessed that either her door was unlocked or the killer used a pass key, surprising her at her writing. Moore's re-enactment of the crime conformed with every detail of the physical evidence.

"I was after money," he said.

MYERS TO SEND LISTS OF NAMES TO 88 COUNTIES

COLUMBUS, Aug. 10—(UP)—Secretary of State George S. Myers today was to send out petitions, bearing 658,014 signatures in favor of the proposed vote on repeal of the sales tax on food for home consumption, to county boards of elections for checking.

Since only 223,000 signatures of qualified voters are needed to place the proposal on the November ballot, verification of the petitions was regarded as a formality.

BOGGS MOUND REMOVAL OPPOSED

WORK AT LOGAN ELM PARK SENDS WIRES TO DAVEY

Order of Ohio Historical Society is Protested By Many Countians

GOVERNOR'S ACT ASKED

Mrs. Jones Angered After Visit
To Famed Tree

A storm of protest was gathering Monday against removal of the Boggs family monument from its mound in Logan Elm park and the order shunting against a boundary fence to make room for picnic tables.

The Pickaway county W. P. A. office was instructed several weeks ago to remove the monument and to cut down the mound to make it easier to read the inscription on the plaque. The order came from the Ohio Archeological and Historical Society, in whose charge the park has been since early in 1900 after the Boggs family, owner of the famous Logan Elm and its surrounding area, relinquished its claims to permit the land to be made into a state park.

Monument Removed
W. P. A. workmen have been busy regrading and doing much other work in the park since a project was approved. The mound on which the monument has stood, believed to have been built by the Indians, has been leveled and workmen are ready to place the Boggs monument in another location.

Telegrams were sent to Governor Martin L. Davey by several historical societies Monday asking that the work be stopped. "The park is being desecrated," one member of the Boggs family said.

Mrs. Howard Jones, president of the Ohio History Day association which annually conducts a celebration at the park early in October, was angered when she saw the mound had been removed and the monument was being removed. She promised to contact officials of the Ohio Archeological and Historical society at once.

W. P. A. officials are "standing by" awaiting further orders from the Historical society. If an order comes from Columbus it is probable the mound will be rebuilt and the monument replaced.

Thousands of tourists have visited Logan Elm Park this summer.

Effort to Save Life Fails

ASTOR - THORPE FIGHT RESUMES

Efforts to Submit Part of
Diary to Court Result
In Fight

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Hollywood emerged cautiously from its silence today in a strenuous, last minute effort to settle the Mary Astor-Dr. Franklin Thorpe child custody fight.

Leading figures of the pictures, seeking to protect the reputations of high priced stars and the moral tone of the industry, had but a few hours to overcome the reluctance of the principles. Trial of the case, in Superior court, was scheduled to resume at 1 p. m. (EST) with Miss Astor the witness.

Miss Astor and her former husband, Dr. Thorpe, were reported unwilling to accept anything but complete victory no matter the revelations or the scandal continued name-calling in court might bring. Victory in either case would mean complete custody of their four year old daughter, Marilyn.

Diary in Question
The cross examination of Miss Astor will continue when court convenes, also the bitter fight over the admissibility of Miss Astor's Lavender Diary, in which, her former husband charges, she rhapsodized extra-marital loves for the future edification of her daughter.

Hollywood heard from several authoritative sources that the office of Will Hays, supreme dictator of the movies, was pulling strings in a determined move to temper the battle, for the general good of the films.

Another peace effort was under the personal supervision of Irving Thalberg, who a few years ago was the "boy genius" of Hollywood.

HOWARD HUGHES STARTS SECRET AIRPLANE FLIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman and aviator, took off in a plane from the Union air terminal here early today for an unannounced destination.

Airport attendants reported that Hughes had 1250 gallons of gasoline in his ship. It was believed he had a co-pilot and a radio operator on board the standard Douglas transport.

Hughes recently secured a special radio band from the Federal Radio Commission, permitting him to encircle the globe and operate a radio.

Hughes took off with the greatest secrecy at 3:05 a. m. (PST). He followed his usual procedure of making quiet preparations over a period of weeks, refusing information on his plans, and then taking off without advance notice.

COLORED HOTEL WORKER ADMITS CO-ED'S DEATH

Detectives' Clever Trick
Wrings Confession From
Martin Moore, 22

MURDER WEAPON FOUND

Clevenger Girl, Visiting in South, Slain July 16

Helen Clevenger's mother is Mary Dresbach Clevenger, a native of Kingston. There are a number of cousins of the deceased girl living in Pickaway and Ross counties.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 10.—(UP)—A deputy sheriff took a blood-stained revolver and a mangled bullet to New York today to complete, with the aid of metropolitan police scientists, the evidence on which authorities next Monday will seek an indictment of Martin Moore, 22, a gigantic young negro, for the murder of Helen Clevenger, 19-year-old New York university student.

Miss Clevenger was shot and clubbed to death with a gun butt in her room in the Battery Park hotel the night of July 16. Moore, a hotel hall boy, confessed the slaying yesterday to Sheriff L. E. Brown and two New York City detectives.

A gun loaded with cartridges of the type that killed Miss Clevenger—the gun taken to New York today—was found under the porch of his home.

Grand Jury Called

District Solicitor Zeb E. Nettles announced that he would ask a grand jury convening next Monday to indict Moore.

"We'll try him within the week and have this murder cleaned up in less than five weeks after it occurred," he said.

Another negro employee of the Battery Park hotel, Banks Taylor, a pantry boy, provided the clue that caused Moore to confess. Prior to that Sheriff Brown and that there were any Germans in the plane seized at Azuaga. Suspension of the Lufthansa service was explained as due to "local reasons." An embassy spokesman said it was hoped that the service might be resumed after a conference with the foreign ministry.

Azuaga, where according to the war ministry the Junkers armed plane was seized, is in an interesting location. It is 180 miles southwest of Madrid, and 80 miles southeast of Badajoz, the important railway junction on the Portuguese frontier. The country around Azuaga seems to be a checkerboard of loyalist and rebel holdings.

RECIPE FOR $20 BILLS RESULTING IN HUNT FOR MAN

Sheriff Charles Radcliff was patrolling roads near East Ringgold, Monday, in an effort to locate a man about 55 years of age, believed demented, who tried to sell a recipe in East Ringgold for making $20 bills.

Residents called the sheriff's department about the man early Monday. Sheriff Radcliff met him along a highway and asked him to ride to Circleville. He refused and when Radcliff told him he was the sheriff he drew a knife and ran through a field. The only weapon the sheriff carried was his revolver. He returned to Circleville for a gas gun and started a search of the vicinity. The man had not been located at noon.

COUGHLIN MILD IN HIS ATTACK ON CANDIDATES

Priest Refrains From Use
Of Bitter Words In
Sunday Speeches

ORDERS FROM VATICAN?

Union Not to Endorse Lemke
For President

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 10.—(UP)—Father Charles E. Coughlin made two speeches Sunday in which his remarks concerning President Roosevelt, Gov. Alf M. Landon, and controversial political questions were mild.

Reports from Vatican City last week said that Papal authorities had conferred with Father Coughlin's bishop, the Rev. M. J. Gallagher, about his political activities. Bishop Gallagher said he told Father Coughlin that he did not approve of a priest "calling people liars," referring to the term Father Coughlin applied to Mr. Roosevelt in a recent speech at Cleveland.

In speeches here and at Syracuse, N. J., yesterday, after Father Coughlin announced that his Union for Social Justice would not endorse the presidential candidacy of Rep. William Lemke officially, though, as one of Lemke's sponsors, he compared his record — to Lemke's credit — with those of President Roosevelt and Gov. Alf M. Landon, the Republican nominee.

Of "Hoop Skirt" Age

Here, Father Coughlin charged that Mr. Roosevelt, having "promised to drive the money changers from the temple," now was catering to big money interests in striving for re-election. Gov. Landon, he said, took his political philosophy from the "hoop skirt" age.

He also attacked Reps. Patrick J. Boland and John J. O'Connor for their opposition to the inflationary Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill.

In Syracuse he seemed to choose his words with great care in speaking of President Roosevelt. "I do not mean to infer that President Roosevelt is a promise breaker," he said, "but that, rather, by driving the money changers from the temple, he means to drive rich people out of existence, and to make us all poor, perchance."

THIS TURKEY SINGS AND PECKS AT STUB OF CIGAR

WEST CHARDON, O., Aug. 10.—(UP)—Farmer Charles Mummery has heard a lot about oddity shows, but every time anyone starts talking about them, he tells about his turkey. Mummery says it dances (preferably to "Turkey in the Straw") sings, says a few words (no, English, not Turkish) and has the tobacco habit, from pecking at a cigar stub in the barnyard.

Squire is Not in Kitten Business

Justice of the Peace I. M. Rossiter of Saltcreek township is not in the cat business. He wishes his friends to know that, and warns others against leaving kittens at his residence.

The same situation that concerns the widely known squire is worrying many of the county's farmers. Persons having cats they wish disposed of leave them at residences of rural persons without knowledge or permission.

Squire Rossiter is up in arms over the practice and has mailed the following letter to The Herald:

"Some of you, I trust, will be interested in the subject that I have selected, and now listen to me and I will tell you a story about two nice little kittens.

"A few nights ago, while I was in conversation with some friends at my residence, an automobile slowed down as if to stop, but went on. A few moments later a strange little black kitten entered the door. In a moment it was followed by another. Now I want to say a few words to the lady or gentleman who dropped those kittens at my place. You are a very tender-hearted class of person. You can not kill a kitten, but you can carry them away to let them starve.

"Now what became of those kittens? Say friend, did you ever read the story 'Pigs in Pigs'? If you have not, then read it and you will conclude that "cats is cats". I have as many cats as I can look after. I have seven here.

"I kill 25 kittens yearly of my own and a dozen or more each year for my friends. Some times I round up strange cats, as many as three in a day. I do not want to trouble my friends by leaving my cats at their residences.

"Now, friends, I do not like to kill cats any better than you, but listen, all of my friends who have cats to kill please notify me when you want it done, and I will call at your residence to dispose of your cats, big or little, for the sum of 50 cents per cat, and kittens also.

"What became of those little black kittens? I fed 'em plenty of milk in the morning."

British Protest Killing

LONDON, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Sir Henry Chilton, British ambassador, today protested to Spanish rebel authorities against the killing of Capt. Rupert Savile, British yachtsman, by shells from the rebel cruiser Almirante Cervera, and the wounding of Savile's wife.

The British protest reserved the right to claim compensation for the incident.

The protest was wirelessed, it is understood, from a British destroyer at St. Jean De Luz to rebel authorities.

BOY, 12, INJURED AT HOMECOMING

Edward Durthaler Falls 30
Feet From Ferris Wheel
To Ground

Topping about 30 feet from a ferris wheel at the Commercial Point homecoming celebration, Edward Durthaler, Jr., 12, Columbus, was in a serious condition Monday in Radium hospital with jaw and head fractures.

The youth is the son of Edward Durthaler, Columbus fish dealer, known in Pickaway county as "Eddie the Fish Man."

The accident occurred Saturday evening. Persons near the ride said the youth was riding in a seat with a man. As they started upward the protecting rod on the seat is said to have come loose causing the seat to overturn. The man grasped the wheel and escaped uninjured.

Lands on Belt

As the youth fell the operator attempted to catch him. The boy landed on the belt driving the wheel, before falling to the ground. He was taken to Mercy hospital in the Finch ambulance. He was later transferred to Radium hospital.

The homecoming was one of the finest Commercial Point has ever conducted. Crowds were large and orderly, and well-supervised.

Prizes were awarded many individuals and clubs as a result of parades and other contests. The float of the Scioto Grain Co., Commercial Point, won first prize in the parade, the Sunshine club was second, and the Harrisburg United Brethren church third.

The Burnley family dominated the comic section with first and third prizes going to the entrants from the family. Second was won by the Hoover and Rodgers entry. In the decorated bicycle section, Leota Sprouse was first, Donald Lambert second, and Jackie Melvin third.

The horse show resulted in much competition, 16 entries being made in the colt division won by Myrl Hinton with Wayne Beavers second and Watson Neal third. In the yearling class, E. P. Hinton was first, Roy Thomas second and Dick Hutchins third. Dory Fausnaugh won in the two-year old with second and third going to Elmer Beavers.

C. V. Neal was president of the Homecoming Association and Sewell Beers was secretary.

COUNTY WILLING TO ASSIST CITY PAY FOR WALKS

Two of the three county commissioners, Ralph May and C. E. Wright, are willing for the county to stand one-half of the expenses for new sidewalks at the Memorial hall. B. H. Rader, the third commissioner, said he would agree if other walks on Main street leading to the corner were improved.

Councilman Ben Gordon conferred with the commissioners Monday morning about the project. He will report the commissioners' views at the next regular meeting of council.

SERVICE IS SUSPENDED

500 Fascists, Monarchists
Reported Put in Jail

MADRID, Aug. 10.—(UP)—A war ministry statement asserted today that loyalists captured a German Junkers airplane, containing military armaments, at Azuaga 60 miles north of Seville, the rebel southern headquarters.

A few hours before the announcement the daily German Lufthansa airplane service between Madrid and Germany was suspended suddenly.

It was reported that the airplane captured was the identical airplane which loyalist sources said landed at Barajas airfield, near Madrid yesterday morning, and took off hurriedly after a brief talk between its pilot and a Lufthansa official.

Four Planes Seized

There were reports also that as soon as this plane left, loyalist authorities seized four Junkers airplanes which were waiting at Barajas airfield to evacuate German refugees.

The war ministry statement said that the airplane seized at Azuaga was of the Junkers "J5" type and that it carried a crew of four.

Rumors were circulated that the plane was piloted by a German and that of the other three occupants two were Germans, the third a Spaniard.

The German embassy's only comment was an emphatic denial.

SEATTLE READY TO PAY TRIBUTE TO DEAD SOLO

SEATTLE, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Seattle tomorrow will conduct a huge public funeral for Representative Marion Anthony Zioncheck, the young Washington congressman who ended a spectacular career with a five story suicide leap from his office in a downtown building.

Arrangements of final details for the rites were delayed pending arrival by airplane of House Sergeant at Arms Kenneth A. Romney, who befriended Zioncheck during his last weeks in Washington, D. C.

The Washington Commonwealth Federation, one of Zioncheck's strongest supporters during his political career, aided the congressman's widow, Ruby Nix Zioncheck, in completing funeral and burial plans. Federation officials believed the rites would be among the largest in Seattle history.

United States Senators Homer T. Bone and Lewis B. Schwellenbach of Washington will be honorary pallbearers. With them will be Knute Hill, Martin F. Smith and Conrad C. Wallgren, Washington. Active pallbearers were not yet announced, but it was believed they will be intimate friends of the dashing representative, a Polish emigrant boy who was catapulted into congress as an aggressive, promising liberal leader.

Services will be held in Seattle auditorium in downtown Seattle. Mrs. Zioncheck had not indicated whether she wished the body buried or cremated.

500 FIGHT FIRES IN FIVE AREAS

Scores of Homes Burned As Flames Cover Big Central Region

ONE FATALITY REPORTED

Recruits Drafted From Resorts and Streets

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 10.—(UP)—Twenty thousand men fought with axes, shovels, portable pumps and water soaked burlap bags today to halt fires which swept through the forests of five north central states, burned scores of farms and summer lodges and forced settlers from their homes. Sheriff's offices drafted emergency crews from among Sunday idlers on streets and in taverns of the fire area towns.

Flames menaced the Douglas county asylum and sanitarium in northern Wisconsin. Three hundred fighters stood guard in the dry fields around the building to protect it from the flames in adjoining forests.

Physicians feared that even if the flames were checked, they might have to remove patients suffering from the clouds of choking smoke.

Thousands Working

Flames which swept across the Canadian border into northern Minnesota advanced steadily despite the efforts of 7,000 weary, begrimed emergency workers, many of whom worked 48 hours without sleep. Early today the flames had blackened 25,000 acres of wilderness and appeared out of control.

Eight thousand men fought fires in northern Wisconsin. Several hundred more checked the blaze which has swept 6,000 acres of Isle Royale, in Lake Superior off the Michigan shore.

In South Dakota, 1,500 men were unable to do more than slow the progress of a wall of flames which has ravaged more than 3,000 acres.

The only known casualty was Archie Murphy, 19, of Sioux Falls, S. D., center of the fire-fighting efforts in South Dakota.

Workers fled the Homestead Mining Company lumber camp at Moskee, Wyo., when a fire which sprang in South Dakota leaped "back-fire" lanes and swept over the boundary out of control. A sudden change in the wind saved the camp.

C. D. Clark, assistant supervisor of the Black Hills National forest, said the fire there may not be stopped until the high winds abate or rain falls. He was unable to estimate the number of summer lodges in the now-blackened fire areas.

58 Homes Destroyed

At midnight last night, fires in northeastern Minnesota had destroyed 58 farm homes. All residents of Markham, Palo and Makin fled their homes. Residents of 14 fire districts in western Minnesota were warned to be ready to evacuate. In Eveleth, residents clustered to stop the fire a half mile from the town limits. Other fires approached Hibbing, Cloquet and Crowell, but were believed under control.

Rain checked the Minnesota fires last night, but did not last long enough to quench them.

Sheriff Arthur Sedin and deputies drafted fire fighting recruits from the taverns and streets in Superior, Wis.

The typical American teacher approves of many far-reaching reforms, but his dissent from the status quo is that of a gradualist rather than that of a revolutionist. — Dr. George W. Hartmann, Columbia university.

Borah's Political Life At Stake in '36 Battle

William E. Borah

C. Ben Ross

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 10.—With the primary of Aug. 11 over Idaho will enter the most heated political battle in years.

The Lion of Idaho, William E. Borah, Republican, will battle C. Ben Ross, Democratic three-term governor, for re-election to the United States senate.

Borah, for the first time in his long career, is meeting a man politically as strong as he within the state.

Opposition in Primaries

Both men were subjected to opposition in the primaries. Byron Defenbach, of Boise, former state treasurer, supported by the Townsend forces, entered the lists against Borah. John A. Carver, blind attorney of Pocatello, at present United States attorney for Idaho, entered the race against Ross.

Townsend clubs sent out 75,000 letters urging voters to vote for Defenbach, not Borah, in the primary.

In the November election Borah will have strong support from farm areas but has been openly opposed by labor, Townsendism and many business groups. Ross is strong in Borah's weak sections.

Favorable to Borah

There are those who would vote for Borah "just to let him have a last term at the job he has filled so long."

Others believe Borah's experience, "which Ross lacks," will prove highly valuable in the next congress "which has many vital duties yet to perform."

The Borah-Ross contest will overshadow the gubernatorial race. Eight Democrats and three Republicans entered the primary lists.

The center of interest lies in Borah. His friends believe another term will shorten his life; that he cannot survive the rigors of another term.

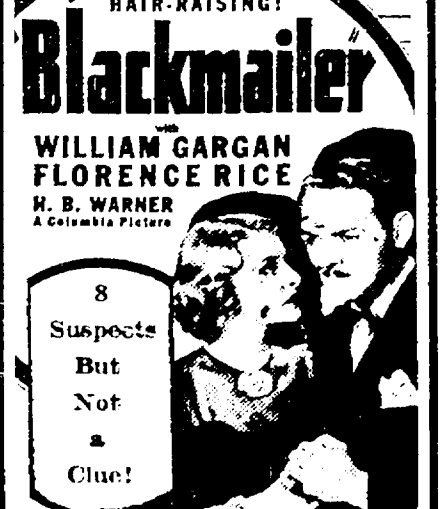

But Townsend forces came out against him and Ross' strength challenged him to accept the battle of his life—and there are no odds being posted against him.

NEW CITY HALL PROMISED FOR FAYETTE CITY

W.P.A. Approves Project to Cost $10,000; Much Work Planned

WASHINGTON, C. H., Aug. 10.—Work will start in the next two weeks on construction of a new city building for this city. It has been approved as a W.P.A. project.

The new municipal building, which includes practically the rebuilding of the present building, will be a two story brick structure, fronting 35 feet 3 inches in Fayette street, or extending from the alley to the south wall of the Fire Department building.

The present floor of the old building will be dropped to nearly sidewalk level, and the ceiling lowered several feet. The south wall of the old structure will be repaired and additional windows cut in it.

The north portion of the new structure, first floor, will be occupied by the City Auditor and Sewerage Rental collection office. The City garage will be back of these offices.

The police court and police headquarters will occupy the present portion of the building.

The second floor will be used for council rooms, City Manager's private office and the Chief of Police's private office.

The rear portion of the building will be rebuilt with reinforced concrete walls for the city prison for men, and the women's jail will be on the second floor.

A side door will be so built that prisoners may be placed in the jail from the alley instead of through the front way.

The city pays $2500 toward the project, and the government $7,500, that after nearly a quarter of a century of effort, and handicapped by short finances, the city will obtain a fairly presentable, and at least practical building for a small expenditure.

CITY HALLS BUDGETEER

MONTEREY, Cal. (UP)—This city is taking off its hat to City Manager E. J. Pardee. He figured out so accurately a year in advance the city's budget for the past year, its revenues and expenditures, that he only missed the mark by $226. The citizen's even forgive the fact that the $226 is on the red side of the ledger.

RICHARD CLARK TO WIN HEARING IN OHIO PRISON

Richard Clark, former Circleville baseball player, will receive a parole hearing at the Ohio penitentiary Sept. 1. He has been an inmate of the institution since May 7, 1934, serving a burglary and larceny charge.

Clark, believed at one time to have a bright future in baseball, took part in several store and service station thefts in the last several years. Efforts of a number of influential friends to gain his parole met with rebuffs when the accused man refused to accept aid.

CHURCH SEEKS PERMISSION TO SELL PROPERTY

A petition asking permission to sell church property on E. Mound street was filed in common pleas court by Efford Haynes, bishop and state overseer for the Churches of God in Ohio.

Haynes' petition declares the property is no longer used by the church since it does not have a large enough congregation to support it.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

SPARKLING with a highly individual brand of humor, "The Bride Walks Out" scored a decided laugh hit at the Cliftona theatre yesterday.

The film is a romantic comedy—but a romantic comedy of a breathless, dizzy type with one riotous situation following another.

Barbara Stanwyck, heretofore known for dramatic performances, surprises by revealing herself as a comedienne of exceptional ability, and swaps laughs and crackling repartee on even terms with such mirth-makers as Gene Raymond and Robert Young, her rival leading men, and with Ned Sparks and Helen Broderick. This quintet keeps the laughs in high gear, and with the aid of sharply-etched characterizations and a grand screenplay, makes "The Bride Walks Out" a not-to-be-missed rare entertainment.

COUNTY PROVIDES DATA TO CIVIL SERVICE BOARD

The Ohio Civil Service Commission sent letters, Friday, to all county officials asking data concerning their offices preparatory to taking steps toward placing all county employees under civil service.

The communication asks a report of the complete payroll roster, including names, salaries and titles of all workers.

It is believed only a few Pickaway county employees would be placed under civil service since most of the workers are deputies and not clerks or stenographers.

FAMOUS WRITER OF WILSON ERA IS DEAD IN EAST

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Robert J. Bender, brilliant reporter of the Woodrow Wilson era, and a former vice president and general manager of the United Press, died yesterday in Mount Vernon hospital.

He had been ill for more than a year but his condition did not become critical until Saturday night when he was taken to the hospital from his home in Pelham Manor, N. Y.

At midnight Saturday he was given a blood transfusion and seemed to rally. Another transfusion was necessary at noon Sunday. Shortly afterward, he lapsed into a coma and died at 2 p. m.

Bender was in his 46th year. He is survived by his widow, the former Helen Gertrude Sterl of Abilene, Kans., an 18-year-old daughter, Beverly Alma, and a sister, Mrs. Charles Auhl of Denver, Colo. At the time of his death his wife and daughter were en route to his bedside from Cincinnati, where they had been visiting friends.

Put maple syrup in bottom of a chilled glass. Add cream. Blend with a silver fork and fill glass with gingerale. Mix until frothy and serve at once.

Wife Preservers

Fresh lemon juice and grated rind are best to flavor sponge cake.

Rock salt dissolved in water, as much as the water will take up, will destroy grass growing between the flags of a back yard. Pour the solution into the cracks.

POTATO RUSK

(Sweet Rolls)

- 1 cup sugar (granulated).

SPARKS FROM SPAIN

IF, as Communist Russia has warned, war is very near, what part will the Spanish revolution play in carrying the torch close again to the European powder keg? A rather wide stretch of the imagination may be required to link the slaughter in Spain to the situation envisioned by Moscow, but, after all, was there a single prophet who considered the murder at Sarajevo twenty-two years ago and foretold the swift succession of events that would plunge the whole world into a war a few months later?

Russia sees herself as the ultimate objective of attack by an alliance which will include Japan on the East, and Germany, Italy and Poland on the West. In fact, Japan has shown a disposition toward aggression and Hitler has more than once indicated, notably in the story of his life, that when the time comes for Germany to seek more land for her growing millions she will logically turn to Russia.

But Russia has not been unmindful of these designs. In anticipation of the coming of the day when her enemies will attempt to slice off acreage from her Eastern and Western frontiers, she has developed the strongest army in the world, numerically, and the most formidable air force. Furthermore, every phase of her national life is being influenced toward ends that will serve military needs in an emergency. Russia will not be found unaware.

Will events in Spain hasten the coming of the day when Europe will witness a recurrence of the scene of twenty-two years ago, when the armies of the world were on the move? It is impossible to answer this question. It is at least certain, however, that the situation has incendiary dangers when Italy sends planes and supplies to the Spanish rebels, and when France has a Government that is itching to support the Leftists in Spain and, observing Italy's activities, sits bolt upright and threatening.

Both Italy and Germany are interested in overthrowing the present Spanish Government, while the interests of France lie in its survival. Once these governments attempt to give practical aid to the particular side they favor by sending airplanes, supplies or troops into Spain, the European war will be on and it will spread like wild fire.

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up early on a beautiful morn to be greeted by visitors from Sidney, John Whitney, his pleasant wife and two charming daughters. John, a former Chamber of Commerce secretary of wide reputation, tired of bouncing all over the United States and chose a small town in which to make his home and rear his family. Wise man. He opened a Credit Bureau in Sidney, declared "I'll fight it out along this line if I starve to death." Almost did for a year, but now is prospering greatly. Which proves that a man of intelligence and energy can accomplish almost anything to which he sets his mind.

By wagon about the village and for the first time was ashamed of the community. Never have seen a dirtier district than Court and High streets. Had all the earmarks of a scrap paper dealer's storage yard after a cyclone. City council either should prohibit the placing of handbills and on automobiles Saturday or should provide means for an early morning cleanup Sunday. Tourists passing through the city by scores, so wondered just what impression of Circleville they carried with them. Hurried to the country where found everything bright and clean and pointed with pride to the many fine farms where green is beginning to show again after the long drought.

Entirely too much dinner and then an afternoon of lazy conversation in which did learn that the guest is inclined to the belief that the Anti-New Deal Democrats will defeat Roosevelt, an idea with which did not agree. However, there was much food for thought in arguments advanced by the visitor. Discussed mutual friends and learned of the death of Jay Miles after whose grandfather Miles City, Mont., was named. Knew that district well before it was ruined by a government that bet butchers, bakers and candlestick makers 320 acres of land they would starve to death in three years. WASHINGTON—It was probably the unhappiest half hour in Bill Green's life. Although he was seated in an air-cooled room, his face was clammy with perspiration. His hands shook with nervousness.

SPARKS FROM SPAIN

He was about to announce the suspension of the ten insurgent unions—including his own United Mine Workers—from membership in the American Federation of Labor, of which he is President, if they continued their affiliation with John L. Lewis's Committee for Industrial Organization.

Opposite him stood a small army of newspapermen, awaiting the news. They lost no time in opening up on him.

"Mr. Green, does the action of the Executive Council today mean that the suspended unions will not be able to vote in the Federation's convention next November?"

"The convention will decide."

"Will the suspended unions be allowed to take part in the convention?"

"That's up to the credentials committee," Green answered.

"Who picks the credentials committee?"

Green hit the ceiling. Pointing his finger at the newsman, he roared: "Why do you ask that? Are you imputing something dishonest?"

"Now, Bill," chided another reporter, "take it slow. Don't yell and don't talk so fast. We don't want to miss any of these pearls."

Green glared.

From the Green conference the newspapermen crossed the street to the offices of the United Mine Workers to interview John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee of the suspended unions.

"Mr. Lewis," asked a correspondent, "do you people contemplate court action to enjoin the Council?"

"No," was the smiling rejoinder. "We are afraid that if we do we might win."

SILENCER

The United States Chamber of Commerce, parent of all Chamber of Commerce, has issued many a blast against New Deal "boondoggling." But the next time one of these fusillades is uncorked, the WPA is all set to slap back with a very interesting exhibit.

It consists of a picture taken in Albuquerque, N. M., showing a handsome community center built with government money and housing a number of local civic bodies. On the outside is a large sign proudly proclaiming:

from obsolescence and launched on a fresh phase of usefulness.

The incident reminds us, however, that another implement, no longer much employed in the game for which it was designed, is allowed to decay in idleness. We refer to the jigsaw puzzle. This also could be hurled at an ex-wife, and it would be infinitely more effective in that capacity than a puzzle book.

Hurling a 300-piece jigsaw puzzle and letting it scatter, an actor might hit not merely one actress ex-wife. He might hit nearly all of them.

Gay Ellwell, check girl in a prominent Detroit club, meets a number of social elite when she fills in at a dinner party at the request of Dr. Wilson, a club member. One of them is Brock Carter. Gay has a date with him but leaves him in a huff when he becomes intoxicated and too attentive. Gay is attracted by Wayne Adams but he has shown little interest in her. She goes to the opening of a new night club with Christian Scott, elderly millionaire. At Rose Heath Gay meets Wayne Adams and they stroll on the terrace for a talk. The next day she goes out for supper between double shifts at the checkroom. Wayne runs into Gay at the restaurant. Back at the checkroom Peggy Pennell, Brock's fiancée, has accused Gay of stealing her jewels which she said were in her coat when she checked it earlier in the afternoon. Wayne Adams appears on the scene and finds Peggy's jewels in the lining of her own coat. Gay is grateful to him. On Sunday Gay goes for a drive with Tim Keenan, a millionaire.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 18

THE CAR was powerful, and Gay liked the way Tim drove, with speed and cool expertness as they went for a Sunday ride. She liked his hands, too; large, knobby-knuckled, work hands, strong as steel.

She liked, especially, that he made no effort to touch her. He was just pleasant, and talked easily as he drove. It had not been his usual Sunday, he said. He generally played 18 holes of golf with Eleanor. Randolph, but she had started the night before, on her way across the Atlantic. He had lunched at the club, played billiards with an old crony, and at his suggestion had arranged to round up a few men friends and their girls for a little informal affair at Tim's shack, 25 miles northeast, on Lake Paradise.

"The party'll be made up of old men like me," Tim grinned at her, "and pretty young things like you, Gay. Get me?"

Gay made no answer. She had heard his age—42, but though his red hair was streaked with gray, and his rugged face showed lines about the eyes and mouth, there was tremendous vitality about the man. He smiled, quick, unexpected, showing fine white teeth.

"Tell me everything about yourself," he invited, lighting a cigar skillfully in the rush of the wind. Gay laughed. "There's nothing interesting to tell about me—except that I'm enjoying every minute of this."

"I really want to know. Where do you live? What did you do before this check girl job?"

So she told him briefly of her life in Traverse City, and the three months' position in Detroit that had preceded her present job at the Pontchartrain club.

Their eyes met, and something in his glance and his next words puzzled her. "Simple as that? You're a clever youngster, aren't you?"

She was still trying to fathom his meaning, when he swung the car onto a country road, lined on either side with majestic trees. He had been driving a steady 60 for some time; now Gay realized with a tingle of excitement that the car was doing 90.

"This is the life," she exclaimed, "Tim said about going fast." Tim grinned at her from enjoyment. He rounded a sharp curve in the road and gay caught her breath and shut her eyes as they sped through a massive stone gateway.

"Think I was going to smash into it?" Tim laughed. "Every-one does." But before Gay could reply, he announced, "Here we are. Welcome to my shack."

"Oh, oh!" Gay cried, "it looks like a castle!"

"Part of it was. Brought over from France, you know. I'll take you all over the place, sometime. It's several thousand acres," he explained casually. "Just a moment, Gay."

There was a rapid exchange of questions and answers between the master and a man servant, who had appeared suddenly. Gay barely had time for a glimpse of the wooded estate sloping down to the rim of the privately owned lake; of gardens, pools, fountains with high-playing jets of water, statues and seats alluringly backgrounded by trees and shrubbery, before Tim led her into the house.

Gay stood still, speechless, in the great entrance hall. Her amazement and radiant appreciation brought crinkles of laughter to the corners of Tim's eyes, and this laughter quickly spread to his lips.

"I wouldn't have missed seeing your face for anything, youngster! I wish Eleanor could, too. Wake up, Gay. It's real!"

Gay wanted, almost, to rub her eyes. It couldn't be real. It must be a dream. There couldn't be such a place this side of fairyland!

The house was a revelation to her. An interminable vista of splendid dignified rooms. Rugs like deep moss. Marble fireplaces. Carved cabinets. Paintings. Everywhere a luxury and beauty that took Gay's breath away and dazzled her unaccustomed eyes.

"I—I didn't know you lived in such a gorgeous place," she cried, still too excited for clear speech.

"A pretty big shack for one man, isn't it? That's why I like plenty of people around. Parties, and that sort of thing. And speaking of parties, my butler tells me the party for this evening blew up. It couldn't be real. But I hope you won't get lonesome here, with just me," he smiled quizzically. "You said you like to swim, didn't you? All right—let's go and swim."

Gay agreed, still all eyes, as he guided her to an electric lift at the end of an intricate maze of halls.

The air was warm for May," Tim remarked, "but the lake's still too chilly for outdoor bathing. We'll use the pool." He pressed a button, and the lift ascended.

Presently Gay found herself being ministered to by a chic French maid, in a dressing room with bath, that for beauty and lavishness exceeded her wildest imaginings. Satin walls, hangings, Empire furniture, all in the palest green. A bejeweled array of platinum-and-green toilet articles on the dressing table, and a sunken tub of pale-green marble in a silver-and-green bathroom!

"Mademoiselle looks charming," murmured Celeste, the maid, when she had outfitted Gay in a scarlet one-piece bathing suit, with cap and slippers to match.

And Timothy said the same thing in different words when Gay went to meet him. She saw something light in his eyes as he inspected her.

"You have pleasant ankles," was his only remark, and together they shot down, Gay didn't know how many stories, to a large, perfectly equipped pool.

"This is just too wonderful for words!" Gay found her voice at last. "It's the thrillingest thing that's ever happened to me."

They were in and out of the pool for an hour. Gay, who swam only fairly well, improved her stroke and found enough courage to practice one or two of the more difficult dives under Tim's direction.

"I learned to dive last winter at the 'Y,'" Gay told him, when they were resting in the big chairs on the pool-rim. "But it still scares me a little."

"You're braver than Eleanor," Tim said, and Gay could see that he really adored Eleanor Randolph. It shone in his eyes whenever he mentioned her. "I've always been a water rat, myself. I was born on old River street, down in Decatur, and swam like a fish as long as I can remember."

He made Gay do the jack-knife dive several times, then masterfully ordered, "Dress now, and let's eat. Don't be long! It puts me in a devil of a temper if I'm kept waiting."

Gay promised to be quick, and hurried to do his bidding.

But after she had taken off the bathing suit in the sea-green bathroom, she couldn't resist the impulse to waste a few minutes in a dance of sheer, wild joy. What fun she was having—how much she'd have to tell Jean, when she got home again!

Another delightful surprise was added to the pleasant arrangements Tim had made for her. She wore down to dinner, not her limp little white silk dress, but a Chinese costume: wide trousers and Mandarin coat of dark blue silk heavily embroidered in gold; her small feet appearing still smaller in Chinese slippers repeating the color and design.

"How you say—very exotique!" Celeste exclaimed.

Dinner was served in an informal, not too large dining room, done in Spanish style; a part of his own private suite, Tim informed Gay. He added that Eleanor had worked with the interior decorators over this part of the house: she herself had selected the furniture and the magnificent El Greco painting that hung over the fireplace.

"You're an attractive youngster, Gay. I like you even better than I expected to. I think we'd get along quite well together." He gave her a long, steady, significant look.

High Blood Pressure Cause Not Discovered

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE BLOOD pressure is low in all infants and most children, and gradually rises as age advances. There is a small rise in nearly everyone at the age of about 15, then it falls, and at 25 again begins to rise. What is the cause of this rise with advancing age? I believe it is pretty generally agreed among physicians that this rise is due to the change which occurs in the arteries of the body during these advancing decades. The arteries become less elastic and "harder," as the popular phrase has it: this is an inevitable accompaniment of growing older. This being so, it is easy to understand why this should cause a rise in blood pressure. Because the only purpose of blood pressure is to keep all the organs and tissues of the body supplied with blood. If this did not happen, life would end. And in pressing the blood out into all these tissues, there are two or three factors at work. The force exerted by the heart is one. It thrusts the blood out into the arterial tree. And when those arteries are elastic and pliable, they open up to receive the tide of blood from the heart, and then squeeze down upon it and press it out into every crevice of the body. This elasticity of the arterial bed is the second factor. The blood can be distributed at much less pressure when the arteries are young and pliable than when they have gotten stiff and have lost their elastic power of compression.

In searching for the cause of high blood pressure, then, we must search for the cause of this change in the arteries.

Everything Blamed

Meat, drink, tobacco, tea, coffee, climate, worry, activity, race, temperament, heredity, occupation, physique, wars, the ductless glands, the state of the world—nearly everything except the New Deal has been blamed.

The idea which has attracted the largest number of American and English students of the subject is that the high tension of modern life, especially modern American life, causes the high pressure. But, again, the broad view dispels this into limbo. The American Negro is not notable for living at high tension, nor for straining unduly in the face of life, yet experience is agreed that high blood pressure is probably commoner among the Negroes than among their white brethren.

Poems That Live

TO THE ROSE: A SONG
Go, happy rose, and interpose
With other flowers, bind my love.
Tell her, too, she must not be
Longer flowing, longer free
That so oft has fettered me.
Say, if she's fretful, I have bands
Of pearl and gold to bind her hands.
Tell her, if she struggle still,
I have myrtle rods at will
For to tame, though not to kill.
Take thou my blessing thus, and go
And tell her this—but do not so!
Lest a handsome anger fly
Like a lightning from her eye,
And burn thee up, as well as I!
—Robert Herrick.

DEGENER LEADS WORLD SWIMMERS AS DIVING CONTEST IS HALF ENDED

DETROIT YOUTH AHEAD OF JAP STAR IN POINTS

American Holds Third and Fourth; Nipponese Showing Speed

OLYMPIC SWIMMING POOL, BERLIN, Aug. 10. (UP)—Dick Degener of Detroit restored some of America's damaged national prestige today when took an unofficial lead at the conclusion of the five compulsory dives of the men's Olympic springboard competition.

Degener, before a crowd of 15,000 that gave him spontaneous applause, amassed an unofficial total of 98.06 points out of a possible 100. Considered by many to be the world's best diver, the Detroit youth, who was third in 1932, drew the first ovation from the crowd on his first dive, a front somersault.

Behind the American in the unofficial standings came Tsueno Shibahara of Japan with 95.4 points. Marshall Wayne of Miami was third with 94.70 and Al Greene of Chicago was fourth with 94.40. Wayne was adopted as a favorite by the crowd, which murmured its disapproval when he received the low of 13.14 points on the fifth dive, a front jackknife with a half twist.

Under the Olympic rules each diver must perform five established dives and five optional dives. After each dive a buzzer is sounded and each judge displays the number of points he thinks the dive warranted. The highest and lowest figures held up by the seven judges, each from a different nation, is disregarded. The other five are averaged.

The five established or compulsory dives are the front somersault, back dive pike, half gainer, cutaway somersault pike and front jackknife with half twist, in that order. Degener scored 15.30, 15.13, 17.39, 13.95, 13.86. His half gainer drew the highest individual score, 17.29, of any dive. Because of his superlative finesse, swimming experts installed the Detroit youth as the favorite for the optional dives which will be held on Tuesday instead of today as originally planned.

When the divers left the new blue-bottomed pool, lanes were drawn for the 800 meters relay for men. Japan immediately showed it was prepared to vigorously defend the water events title it won in 1932 when its combination set an Olympic record of eight minutes 36.1 seconds breaking the record of 8:58.4 it set at Los Angeles. Germany qualified in second place.

The United States also impressed in winning its heat but the difference in times led to the installation of Japan as favorite. The American combination of Charles Hunter, Ralph Gilman, Paul Wolf and Jack Medina, staged a runaway race and were 30 meters ahead of the second Hungarians in 9:10.4. Poland was disqualified in this heat for beating the gun.

YESTERDAY'S HERO: Lou Gemrig who homered in the first game, and whose triple with the bases loaded drove in all the runs in the second game as New York's Yankees won a doubleheader from the Philadelphia Athletics.

American Track, Field Men Best

BERLIN, Aug. 10. (UP)—American men still rule the world in track and field.

Eight days ago crack athletes from all corners of the globe began competition in the 11th Olympic games—determined to wrest from the United States the under path title it has held since the games were revived in 1896 at Athens.

But today those stars were forced to admit that Uncle Sam's boys still are tops. The sturdy band from the United States retained its unofficial team championship with one of the greatest displays of athletic prowess the world ever has seen.

The Americans won a dozen titles and rolled up 203 points—more than the combined scores of their three nearest challengers, Finland, Germany and Japan.

Nine Marks Broken In whipping the world, they shattered nine Olympic records. Five of those new marks were superior to the old world records.

The American women were not so fortunate, however, in the track and field competition which ended in huge Olympic stadium yesterday. They finished second to Germany in team standing.

The track competition evoked some of the greatest assaults on records in history. Nine world records and 17 Olympic marks were broken by men and three world

About This And That In Many Sports

Short Has Chance

Harry Short, one of Circleville's exponents to the trotting game, has an entry in the fast Hambletonian to be run at Goshen, N. Y., on Wednesday. Short's entry is Gaitty Mite, which ran a good second to Rosalind, the favorite, in a preliminary last week. All Circleville hopes Short can come through to victory or high in the money.

Flowers to Trio

Flowers to Elmer Wolf, Robert Musser and Bernard Young for the efforts they are planning to make the Pumpkin Show horse show the best in history. Outstanding entries are being sought with the premium list increased to a near-suitable amount to assure success.

The softball schedule opens tonight with Circleville Oils and Given Oils in action. Because of a postponement last week the Circleville Oils have not been in action for more than 10 days.

Ohio Tenn's Meet

The central Ohio tennis tournament will be held in Chillicothe August 19. J. C. Wilkins is accepting entries.

Owens Rates Title

Jesse Owens should be rated an athletic immortal. His showing in the Olympic track and field competition gave him three first places alone and another as a member of the 400-meter relay team. Mr. Adolph Hitler, Germany's big chest man, completely ignored Mr. Owens. No hard feelings on the part of Owens, he doesn't like to shake a hostile hand anyway, and that is what Hitler has been through the entire meet. Just another argument for "Why were the Olympics held in Berlin at this time?"

Goeller Is Winner

Billy Goeller, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Goeller, won the 5-mile bicycle race at Smith's oval Saturday afternoon. He received a merchandise prize from stores sponsoring the event.

RED BIRDS LOSE TO KASEYS; MOVE ON TO ST. PAUL

COLUMBUS, Aug. 10. (UP)—The Red Birds will open their stand against St. Paul there today after extending their losses to six out of the last seven starts by losing to Kansas City yesterday, 9 to 3.

The Blues jumped into an early lead by registering five tallies in the first inning against the hurling of Bill McGee. Nick Culp lost a fly in the glaring sun to aid the Blues.

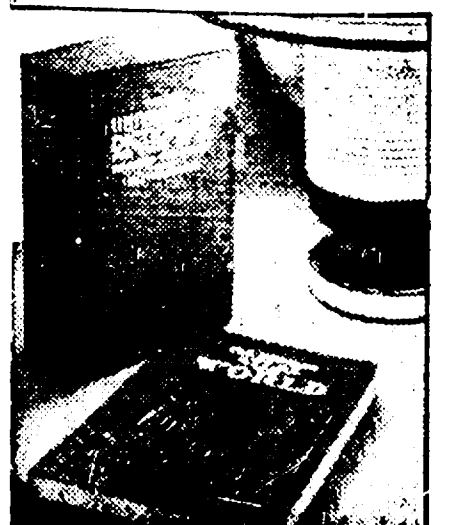

Al Fisher pitched well for Columbus in the last five innings but the damage was done by that time.

Charles Butterworth To Head Lineup For Rudy Vallee Program

NEW YORK CLUB STAR IS BOOKED FOR BROADCAST

Bing Crosby Offers Merle Oberon, Skipworth and Others

Charles Butterworth, currently on the high seas en route from Europe to the United States, will arrive in New York in time to head Rudy Vallee's Variety Hour guest star list next Thursday, August 13. Another personality, now in the public eye, whom Rudy will bring to the broadcast over a WPAF-NBC network at 7 p. m. (EST) is Josephine Huston, New York night club singer.

Butterworth, the hesitant humorist from Hollywood who got his start on the New York musical comedy stage, is on his way back to the screen city. He stops off at Radio City long enough to rehearse and broadcast in the Vallee Hour.

New York columnists have been predicting a great future for Miss Huston, who has been a leading attraction of the Hollywood Restaurant on Broadway. She will sing several new popular tunes on the program. Other entertainment with a timely angle will be announced in a few days.

CROSBY BOOKS STARS

Merle Oberon and Alison Skipworth, dealers respectively in glamour and comedy, will represent the movies in Bing Crosby's Music Hall program next Thursday, August 13. Another contrast just as vivid from the field of music brings Josephine Tumminia, of the San Francisco Opera, and Louis Armstrong, who fairly lays claim to the title of "world's hottest trumpet," to the same guest star bill.

Bing, as singing star and master of ceremonies of the show, also presents Bob Burns, pride of Arkansas, returning after a one-week absence from the air, and Jimmy Dorsey's band. The broadcast will be on the air over a WEAF-NBC network at 9 p. m.

Bing plans to interview the Misses Oberon and Skipworth in another of his highly informal human interest examinations. Previous sessions of the same kind have revealed several colorful but little known anecdotes of Hollywood.

Miss Tumminia, a coloratura, made her debut at the San Francisco Opera last season. Early this year she was introduced to radio listeners by Sigmund Romberg in his broadcasts from Hollywood. Some months ago she also appeared as Bing's guest in the Music Hall and popular response earned her another date. She will sing a group of numbers from the soprano repertoire.

Louis Armstrong, jumping into the Manhattan limelight from the dusky "little Broadway" that runs through Harlem, has astounded radio listeners and cabaret patrons for years with his pyrotechnics on the trumpet. As an exponent of "hot jazz" he vies with Jimmy Dorsey's swing band for rhythm honors in this show.

"DUCKLESS CYCLE" ENDS

SISKIYOU, Cal. (UP)—The duck depression of the past five years that has been driving sportsmen to buy them at the butcher's is being gradually broken. Heavy rains in the nesting regions of northern Canada is what broke the back of the "duckless cycle."

CARMEL THEATER DOOMED

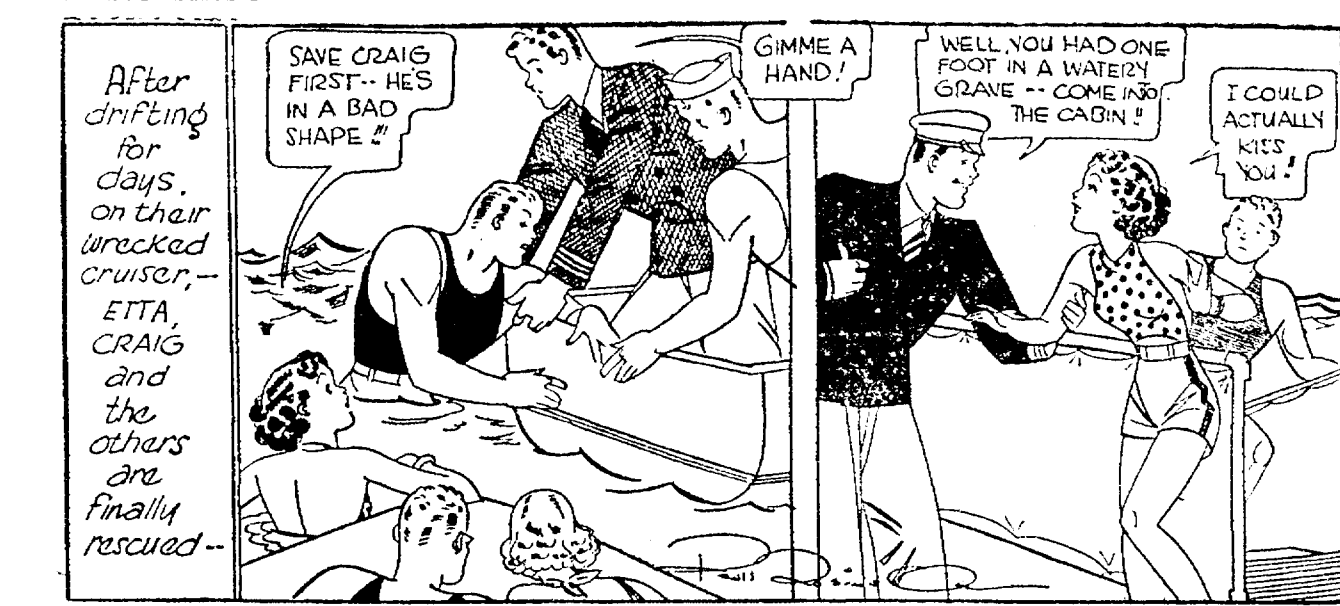

CARMEL, Cal. (UP)—Real estate is more valuable than art. The nationally known Forest Theater, where some of the nation's leading artists appeared in experimental drama is to be divided and sold for residential lots. As an open air theater it did not pay.

RATE INCREASE APPEAL DROPPED
BY LOCAL FIRM

COLUMBUS, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Inability to get a three-judge court in time to consider an injunction against a rate increase ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission caused John W. Eshelman & Sons, Circleville, to dismiss its case against the commission.

The petition was filed July 10, asking suspension of the commission order, which imposed Columbus rates upon grain shipments of the Circleville firm.

The commission had suspended the order until Jan. 1, 1937. But on July 6 the order was vacated and July 13 was set as the effective date for the increased rates. The firm was unable to obtain a three-judge hearing before that date.

The case will be heard by the commission sometime in the fall.

wood, and his beautiful wife, Norma Shearer.

It was believed the movie magazines asked Thalberg to intervene as mediator.

It was known that Thalberg talked with Miss Astor and other persons connected with the case. His secretary said, however, that he had not attempted to advise either party of the controversy, and would not "unless there is a concrete plan for settlement."

Thalberg and wife spent a busy weekend. Their limousine was seen to stop at M-G-M studio, where both work, and at United Artists studio, where Miss Astor is completing a leading role in "Dodsworth," for Samuel Goldwyn.

Attorneys for both sides were cognizant of the peace moves on several fronts, but professed to know of nothing at present which would stem the flow of red-hot testimony from the lips of Miss Astor and her diary.

Joseph Anderson, counsel for Dr. Thorpe, and R. R. Woolley, Astor lawyer, were prepared to fight over the admission of the 200 page diary.

"All or Nothing"
Anderson demands that "certain sections" of the diary be admitted to evidence as mandatory to the case of Dr. Thorpe. Woolley wants all of the diary introduced, or not one line. He alleges Anderson is afraid to introduce all of the book, which Miss Astor says was stolen from her boudoir by Dr. Thorpe.

Judge Knight has intimated he will admit only those portions of the flaming volumes which have direct bearing on which of the embattled parents shall have custody of little Marilyn Thorpe, who plays around her mother's Toluca estate gleefully ignorant of what is happening in the courtroom downtown.

George S. Kaufman, Broadway playwright, with from Miss Astor admitted an affair, was scheduled to appear in the courtroom today in answer to a subpoena. Dr. Thorpe's attorneys wish to provide through Kaufman that it was the actress and not Dr. Thorpe, who wanted the divorce obtained by the doctor in 1935. Terms of the divorce constitute part of the present struggle and will be settled after the end of the child custody case in a second court action.

Miss Astor gave Dr. Thorpe custody of the baby and a property settlement in exchange for freedom. Now she wants return of the child, a re-settlement of property and an annulment instead of divorce.

It was said that Kaufman may take a chance and not answer his subpoena.

AT 8:30 TONIGHT

Circleville's curfew, warning children under 15 years of age to be off the streets, will ring at 8:30 p. m. Monday. The fire bell will be tapped four times.

Police have been instructed by Mayor W. J. Graham to see that no children are loitering on the streets after that hour.

Prescribing dangerous drugs without the advice of a physician and without careful physical examination involves heavy risk.

THE MAYTAG SEDIMENT TRAP
makes clothes cleaner!

When Maytag introduced the cast-aluminum tub washer, with Gyrator washing action, new speed and gentleness were brought to home washing. But there is another reason why a Maytag makes the clothes so clean and white. It is the sediment trap underneath the Gyrator in the bottom of the tub. The grit and grime collect in this trap, instead of being washed back into the clothes. This is just one of many advantages which won world leadership for the Maytag. Each week a Maytag creates savings to help provide the easy payments. Any Maytag available with gasoline Multi-Motor.

Detectives' Clever Trick
Wrings Confession From

made no progress toward a solution, although at various times they had arrested and released six persons, including Moore.

Taylor told the sheriff Thursday after keeping quiet three weeks in fear of becoming involved, that Moore owned "an old Spanish pistol." Ballistics experts already had determined that the gun that killed Miss Clevenger was of a caliber not manufactured in the United States so Brown questioned Moore again.

Two New York detectives came here Friday to help him. One was John Quinn, who a few months ago was credited with a major part in finding the slayer of Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton, short story writer, who was murdered in her New York apartment. The other was Sgt. Thomas Martin of the New York homicide squad.

The sheriff, Quinn and Martin went together to Moore's home. "What did you do with the pistol you killed the girl with?" Brown abruptly demanded.

Blamed Another
Moore trembled visibly, the officers said. He attempted no evasion about the gun, but tried to lay the slaying on another negro hotel worker.

"The gun's under that porch there," Moore said, pointing at a corner of his three room, tumbling down house. "But I didn't kill her. I didn't know nothin' about it. Roddy killed her."

Then he asserted, in a seizure of fright that the policemen said made him almost unintelligible, that he had loaned the gun before Miss Clevenger was slain to L. D. Roddy, a Battery Park hotel bell boy. Roddy returned it, he said, after the killing.

The policemen arranged a unique inquisition to break his story.

In a room at police headquarters they concealed a dictaphone. Then they put, Moore, Roddy and Taylor into the room together and ostensibly left them alone.

"You boys talk this over and decide who's lying," Sheriff Brown told them. "I'll be back in 30 minutes."

Immediately he slammed the door, he Quinn, and Sgt. Martin

seated themselves before the dictaphone amplifier and listened.

Details Revealed

Roddy had been told that Moore accused him of having had the gun the night Miss Clevenger was slain. He and Taylor went to work on Moore together. The policemen refused to reveal details of what was said, except that Taylor said to Moore:

"There's no use you bein' a fool and lyin' about this thing any longer. The sheriff'll find out you didn't loan your gun to Roddy."

"They got so mad they were almost ready to fight when I opened the door again," Brown said. "Moore was washed up. 'I'll talk,' he said right away."

He dictated a confession to a stenographer, then went to Miss Clevenger's hotel room and re-enacted the crime for photographers. Miss Clevenger was killed at about 1 a. m. She and her uncle, Prof. W. L. Clevenger of North Carolina State College at Raleigh, had gone to their rooms early in the night but the girl, after donning pajamas, sat up writing letters and making an entry in her diary. It had been guessed that either her door was unlocked or the killer used a pass key, surprising her at her writing. Moore's re-enactment of the crime conformed with every detail of the physical evidence.

"I was after money," he said.

TO 88 COUNTIES

COLUMBUS, Aug. 10.—(UP)—Secretary of State George S. Myers today was to send out petitions, bearing 658,014 signatures in favor of the proposed vote on repeal of the sales tax on food for home consumption, to county boards of elections for checking.

Since only 223,000 signatures of qualified voters are needed to place the proposal on the November ballot, verification of the petitions was regarded as a formality.

SPECIALISTS
COSTS NO MORE

Lubrication by men who specialize on Dodge and Plymouth costs no more than an ordinary "grease job." Our men are more than lubrication specialists, they are specialists on Dodge and Plymouth lubrication. Reasonable, isn't it, that they should do a better job?

weeks who were trying to maintain wireless liaison with rebels at other centers, it was understood.

Lights remained on all night in the capital, after three lightless nights of air raid practice. It was believed the tests were abandoned because Fascists - Monarchist snipers took advantage of the darkness to shoot at government men who patrolled the streets.

Loyalists were cheered greatly by a war ministry announcement of a victory over rebels in the Guadarramas in the vicinity of the Nava Fria pass. Two hundred rebels were killed against only four loyalist dead, it was asserted, in a fierce fight which lasted from early morning to 4 p. m.

The military situation generally remained indeterminate.

Fighters Resisted

Loyalists columns advancing on Zaragoza are meeting stout resistance every mile of the way and are advancing slowly. Loyalists hope to take Huesca, north of Zaragoza, at any time.
